WALTON CANAL TERMINAL AND BRIDGE BILLS HAVE PASSED THE SENATE

Now up to the Assembly and There is Reason to Hope They Will be Passed by That Body--Two Bills That Mean Much for Kingston and Ulster County.

Senator Charles W. Walton's bill appropriating $139,000 for the completion of the bridge across the Rondout creek, and the Walton-Brush bill relative to barge canal terminals passed the senate Wednesday night, and both bills have been sent to the assembly and it is expected that they will be passed there today or Friday.

The Walton-Brush bill provides for the barge canal terminals to be located at Kingston, Newburgh, Yonkers and Poughkeepsie. It provides for $160,000 to be appropriated for terminal sites. The measure is an important one for Kingston, but that fact was appreciated was shown recently when a large delegation of Kingston business men, headed by Mayor Canfield, went to Albany when the bill was up for a hearing.

The bill appropriating money for the completion of the Slightsbush bridge is a measure that is of great importance to Kingston. The need of the bridge has been plainly shown and only recently when the ancient craft Skillypot was taken off the route to undergo necessary repairs and vehicles were forced to detour by way of Edenville.

When the new short line railroad is built from Wilbur bridge to Highland, and the chances for it look bright since Governor Whitman has signed a bill providing that no bridge can be built at Castleton, it means that there will be considerable more traffic between the town of Esopus and Kingston and the completion of the bridge will be an imperative need.

BRIEF REVIEW OF THE BATTLE NEWS

Interest in the great new battle which has developed in northern France and Belgium was concentrated today upon the situation at Arras, where the British have made another small retirement.

The withdrawal of the British forces from Arras did not come as any great surprise, however, in view of the formation which the battle front acquired as a result of the German gains north of the Lys river and south of Messines Ridge on Wednesday.

A double salient was pressed into the British front which "pocketed" Arras in between them.

The withdrawal has enabled the Germans to straighten their lines at that point, although it was doubtful if the Germans were able to get into the city as the British war office said that it was filled with poison gas from German shells.

When the British forces fell back they evidently followed the railway line leading from Arras northwestward through Hazebrouck. This railway is paralleled by a road which passes through Bailleul and Cassel. (Arras lies on the Franco-Belgian frontier about the center of the twenty-mile line over which the Germans began their new drive in the north. It is between seven and eight miles north of the German base at Lille and has remained in British hands since the beginning of the war despite the efforts of the Germans to capture it.)

It is not believed that Arras will be of much use to the Germans. It has little strategic value and has been pounded to ruins by artillery.

Violent fighting continued along the whole of the new battle front Wednesday and last night from the region of the Lys (north of Labasse Canal) to a point near the Ypres Comines Canal, just south of Ypres. The Germans delivered a furious bombardment against the greater part of the French positions, indicating that they were preparing for another infantry blow on the southern side of the Picardy salient.

This was the twenty-second day of the German drive.

Artillery played the chief role in the activities on the French front last night, only one infantry action being reported.

The Germans attacked near Orville, but were defeated.

AMERICANS REPULSE GERMANY'S BEST

By Telegram to The Freeman.

With the American Army in France, April 10, (6 p. m.)—American troops on the front northwest of Toul today beat off the heaviest attack yet delivered against them when the American lines were assaulted by 800 "shock" soldiers.

The enemy was completely routed and suffered heavy losses.

It was the biggest operation in which Americans had taken part and was marked by terrific artillery fire. The Germans were everywhere out-fought.

The action lasted two hours and was prefaced and followed by the heaviest artillery exchanges in which American artillery had yet taken part.

The Americans in the front line trenches fought with the utmost gallantry and refused to yield a single foot of ground.

The attack was delivered early in the morning, under cover of a heavy barrage fire and the Germans were favored by a thick mist which hampered observation.

The Germans advanced in mass formation, but were mowed down by the fire from the Americans' rifles and machine guns.

When day dawned a number of bodies could be seen lying in "No Man's Land." Two wounded Germans were captured. One died from his wounds and the other is in a field hospital in critical condition. He had been shot through the eye.

The action followed a number of minor raids directed at a point where German prisoners were captured on Saturday.

The fight was the first real test of the American infantry and the Yankees proved more than a match for the enemy in every branch of the service engaged.

The attack was made up of crack troops that had been picked for an effort to break the American lines.

A signal to the American gunners for a counter barrage, when the attack commenced, was answered so quickly that the enemy's strategy was upset and the shells that plowed through the advanced ranks did great execution.

During the night the enemy's guns had cut the wire entanglements, but when the Germans advanced to the attack they met with stiffer resistance from the Americans than they had anticipated.

Throughout the entire night the sectors defended by the Americans had been bombarded with gas shells and high explosives from German guns of all calibers.

The fortitude displayed by the American soldiers won the praise of the commanding officers and French army experts. The spirit of the men was so high after the German attack that they wanted to pursue the enemy.

It now develops that one of the German prisoners captured by the Americans last Saturday was a sergeant who had won the iron cross.

KINGSTON MAN MAKING GOOD

Very Creditable Reports Are Heard of Grant Brinnier, Who is Doing His Bit in France.

Ex-Mayor William D. Brinnier has received a letter from France from one of the superior officers in the army, in which his son, Grant, is in France, a portion of the letter being as follows:

"I was as glad to see him as he was to see me. You know when you are in a foreign land anyone from your home town looks very much like the real thing to you."

"Grant is making good here by his own hard work and I want to tell you that it has been no pleasure party for the last three months but at no time during all these hard days has he shown anything but a cheerful disposition and a perfect willingness to do the work assigned to him, and I am quite sure that in the very near future his hard work will bear results that will be profitable to himself."

TWO REMARKABLE VOTERS FOR A "DRY" KINGSTON.

Perhaps two of the most remarkable people who have registered for the coming special election are shown in the above picture of Mr. and Mrs. James Stokes of Joy's Lane, this city. It will be seen that Mr. Stokes is at the wheel. Both he, who is 94 years old, and his wife, who is 81 years old, registered. The history of these two, hale and hearty old people is one of extreme interest and shows, as briefly related by them, the immense strides in humanitarianism which the world has made in a century. Mr. Stokes was born in "The town of Paltz." His early education, that is "schooling," consisted of five days at school. Then, his mother having several children to care for, he was bound out to work at the age of seven years. From that time to early manhood Mr. Stokes lived in different parts of the county, and for seven seasons was on the Delaware and Hudson Canal. His reminiscences of the canal days, especially during the frightful cholera epidemic, are both interesting and thrilling. After his days on the canal, Mr. Stokes was for some time with "Dick" Brohead at his distillery at or near Kravie. Apple whiskey was made at this distillery—and there were several such about the country, which bought up apples all over this vicinity—and much of it was as high as 90% alcohol; too strong for any man to drink much without "pickling his insides," according to Mr. Stokes, who having been able to drink his share in his day, knows the damage which strong drink can do. For the past three years he has not drunk any liquor and says he does not need the stuff and so will vote against it. Another interesting experience related by Mr. Stokes was that of tree felling and plank saving by hand for the purpose of providing the material with which to build the canal boats. When he came to Kingston some 23 years ago, Mr. Stokes was a stone wall builder and he did much of the stone construction work on the West Shore Railroad in this section.

Today, both Mr. and Mrs. Stokes have what might be called a "Home Laundry," and do from three to five washes a week, including the ironing. They have the work down to a science, and during the coldest of last winter weather, Mr. Stokes went for and delivered the laundry. When interviewed by The Freeman reporter yesterday, they were getting a bit impatient at the length of the all as it was time that some of the clothes should be on the line, especially as the irons were getting over hot.

Mrs. Stokes has an equally dramatic history. Born in the town of Hurley, she evidently inherited much of the physical strength and endurance of her grandmother, an Indian squaw whom her "Grandfather brought from Delaware County," and whom she evidently remembered with some pain as being anything but sweet tempered. At the age of five, being smaller than her older sister, and therefore possibly less helpful in the future, she was bound out to her grandmother whose home was in Hudson. There she stayed until fifteen, when repeated whippings, etc., caused her, through the efforts of a servant of her grandmother, to run away home, to try and find her father. The first person she met when she finally reached Hurley where her father and mother lived, was her father, whom she did not know and he did not know her. She stayed at home only two weeks, finding conditions not much more ideal than with her grandmother. So she again ran away to Port Jackson where she remained for some time.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Stokes have been married four times, and seem very happy in this their fourth adventure in marriage. Mrs. Stokes's husband, Levi Dietz, died in the battle of Antietam, as a curious, colored certificate, framed and in an honored position on the walls of the living room testifies. Among some of the tragic experience of Mrs. Stokes's mature years, was the loss of seven of her fourteen children, in two days by black diphtheria, while the family was living in Hurley some thirty-five years ago.

On the day that Mrs. Stokes registered, and when this picture was taken, she walked to Rondout to visit her daughter, Mrs. Mary Denike—she has one other daughter, Mrs. Rosa Smith of Dumont—and then walked back home. The day was so nice that after resting a while she and a neighbor then went out in the nearby fields hunting for "greens."

BLOODY STONE AND CLEAN HAMMER

Found Near Joe Michael's Body By His Former Employer—Stone Was Wet With Blood at 10:30 A. M.

A hammer without blood stains and a stone which at 10:30 o'clock in the morning that Joe Michael's body was found, was still wet with blood, figured prominently in the Malone murder case this morning in county court.

Vincent Morano, the first witness called, testified he owned and conducted a fruit farm situated on the Ridge road, the front of the farm being three-quarters of a mile and the house one mile from the Marlborough post office. He knew Tom Malone, who did not work for him, but who sometimes came across to the farm. Last summer Morano was short of help and Malone suggested selling tomatoes which were going to rot. Finally Morano sold tomatoes to Malone at cost and loaned him his horse and wagon. Malone selling the tomatoes for what he could and keeping the difference.

One day the horse and wagon were missing, but were found at Beacon, where Malone had taken them and where he was under arrest. Joe Michael worked for Morano one year, living on the farm for one year preceding his death, occupying a shanty on the place. Edward McCarthy's house is on another road, about a mile away, across the field. Near the shack where Joe lived were an apple and small oak tree.

The day before Joe died (September 25) Joe worked, stopping at 6 o'clock, when he fed the horse and got through about 6:30 o'clock. Morano saw him later on the lane with Dominick Lucatini but did not see Joe again that night. He saw Dominick about 8 o'clock when Dominick brought home two bottles of beer and each man drank one bottle, after which each went to bed. Dominick sleeping upstairs and Morano occupying a room down stairs to which Mrs. Morano had retired before Dominick came home. His son, Arthur Morano, came home a little later and Morano heard him go to his room. He heard nobody get up or leave the house that night. About 6 o'clock that evening before Joe had left an automobile had come up the lane, staying five or ten minutes. He did not see any other automobile that night.

When Morano Got Up.

About 4 o'clock the next morning Morano got up but saw it was too dark to go to work and went back to bed. He got up again a few minutes before 5 o'clock. Dominick was mistaken in saying he, Dominick, did not get up until 6:30 o'clock; it was 5:30 o'clock. When Morano got up he went "up on the hill" where foundations of stone and concrete were being laid for a building. He wanted to get some work done before the masons came, mixing sand and concrete.

TWO DAYS VOTE BILL APPROVED

Heard somebody breathing heavy and looked around; he saw a man lying on the ground and walked over when he saw it was his man Joe. Morano thought he was drunk and called to him a number of times, but then saw he had been hurt. He noticed his trousers were up around his legs and that there was dust and blood on him, and a cut on his face. He thought he was drunk and tried to help him up. Seeing he was cut, he went back to the house and told his wife; then changed his clothes, washed his face and hands, and in about ten minutes went on to Dr. Palmer's house. The doctor was in bed yet. On the way down he saw Michael Brady in front of McGowan's Hotel and asked if he had seen Joe the night before, then telling him that Joe had been hurt.

Morano pointed out the location of buildings, foundation, trees, etc., on the map. Joe was lying in the strawberry patch, near a pear tree. Dr. Palmer arrived about 7 o'clock, looked Joe over, and said: "He's all in." Joe died while the doctor was there. Morano and the doctor looked over the ground. They found the strawberry plants covered with blood all the way in from the lane, with several larger blood spots, and the plants were bent over towards where the body was. All his clothes were pulled up. Near the tool house at the corner of the lane and Ridge road, they found 20 cents, and 25 cents were found near the body. Near the edge of the lane were blood spots, covered with dust. The dust was six inches deep. In spots the dust was washed down. Morano sent his boy to Joe's shack to get a sheet to cover the body. Dr. Palmer notified Coroner George Suter. In going to Dr. Palmer's, Morano walked. He did not see any blood along the highway.

On the Saturday before Joe died, Morano gave him $5, and on Tuesday, September 25, gave him $10, not having at the time $5 which Joe had asked. He never saw Joe wear a blue hat; he wore a coffee colored brown hat; Tom Malone never wore a blue hat but had a dark brown hat with him. Turned up. Morano identified the brown hat which he said Malone wore; also the brown hat worn by Joe and the "good" clothes of Joe, which he had bought sometime in the spring—a blue suit with green check. Around the farm, Malone wore a gray mixed suit, which witness identified.

Morano Found a Hammer.

The little house at the lane and highway was filled with tools. In looking around after finding the body, Morano found a hammer just outside the door, clean-looking and

AUTO AND TROLLEY IN COLLISION

A Kingston city trolley car in charge of William Klein and John Gedny and an Oldsmobile truck driven by Merritt Every of Port Ewen, collided this morning at the southwest corner of Fair and Pearl streets. No passengers were in the car. The car was sent out as a wrecking car to make some repairs on a car on North Front street and was on the way back to the car barn. The car left the rails after the collision, and for some time uptown bound cars could not go farther than this corner. No one was injured. The trolley car was slightly damaged. The Oldsmobile was damaged about the steering gear. It was towing another car to the garage; this car was not damaged.

Before the Advisory Board.

Twenty-one men from Local Board of Division No. 2 will go to Poughkeepsie Friday to appear before the Medical Advisory Board. These men went last week the second trip is made necessary because their papers did not arrive in time. This was not the fault of the board here, as the papers were mailed on time.

Officers in a beautiful ceremony. Large delegations are expected from all the chapters in the district. A delightful musical program has been arranged by the worthy matron, Miss Minnie E. Kiseley, and the star de grees will be conferred in full form on five candidates, after which a banquet will be served. A good time may be expected by all who attend.

IN THE SERVICE OF OUR COUNTRY

Ulster county soldiers and sailors and their friends are invited to send photographs and brief biographical sketches of the men from this county who are in the service for publication in The Freeman. All photographs will be returned unharmed.

PRIVATE EMERSON A. KILMER.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Kilmer of 18 East St. James street, this city. At the age of 19 years volunteered his service for his country June 12, 1917 with Co. M. The company left Kingston August 10 for Baltimore, Md., and later was stationed at Camp Meade. He is now a member of the Headquarters Co., 107th Inf., U. S. A., Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C. He was also an active member of the Barmann Five, Drum and Bugle Corps and Central Hook and Ladder Co., this city. He will be glad to hear from his old town friends at the above address.

Chris Lang a member of the aviation corps, is now safe somewhere in England and is enjoying life according to letters received from him.

Michael Joseph Ferguson, Headquarters Co. 310th Infantry, Camp Dix, N. J., has returned after spending a four days furlough with his father, aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Gallagher, 192 Foxhall avenue.

Private Lyman R. Hallenbeck of Co. D, 306th Regt., is quite ill with spinal meningitis at the camp hospital, Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I. His mother, Mrs. Byron Hallenbeck, of Ulster avenue, Saugerties, left for his bedside Wednesday morning.

Word has been received by the Moran Business School that Andrew E. Fekete of East Kingston, a former student, entered the National Army at Camp Devens on April first. After completing his studies at the Moran School, Mr. Fekete went to Bridgeport, Conn., where he was employed as payroll clerk with a large concern. Mr. Fekete is very much pleased with camp life and enjoys working for Uncle Sam. His address is 16th Co., 4th Bn., 151st Depot Brigade, Camp Devens, Ayer, Mass.

Daniel P. Hoffman, Co. C, 102d Engineer, Camp Wadsworth, Spartanburg, S. C., is spending a brief furlough with his father, Anthony Hoffman, and brother, J. Francis Hoffman, of No. 82 Chambers street, this city. He went to Albany yesterday to visit friends there and at the state capital at which he was employed when he enlisted. He expects to return to his home in Kingston about Sunday where he will spend a few days before returning to camp.

Metropolitan W. S. S.

At the Metropolitan War Savings Society meeting on Wednesday evening, Mrs. Laura MacMillan gave a very interesting and instructive talk on the benefits of thrift among the people of Kingston. Mrs. MacMillan related a number of experiences and gave valuable advice to the members. Attorney John M. Cashin made an eloquent patriotic address and thrilled his hearers at each period, showing the causes leading up to the war and its possible results. Mr. Cashin pointed out our duty and pleaded that we save and thus serve our country. Altogether the meeting was very successful, well attended and a number of new members added to this already growing W. S. S. President Alfred and Postmaster DeWitt made reports to the members on sales of stamps.

Sheriff Locates Deyo.

Emery Deyo of New Paltz, who failed to appear at the armory last Thursday to report for instructions and did not show up with the other conscripts who entrained from here last Friday for Camp Dix, has been located in New Jersey by Sheriff Smith. The adjutant general's office has been notified and Deyo will be apprehended and induced into the service. If it is proven that the delinquency was deliberate upon the part of Deyo it is liable to go hard with him.

Tobacco Man in Veteran.

"The Tobacco Leaf," the journal of the wholesale and retail tobacco trade, contains a lengthy article concerning Oscar Hupfer, who has bought the Charities place at N. Y. and is residing there. The property is just beyond the Centerville M. E. Church. Mr. Hupfer is a well-known man in the tobacco trade.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The Knights of the Cross and Crown of the St. James M. E. Church gave a banquet Monday evening to the young women who took part in the play, "Look Out for Paint." The young men proved themselves royal entertainers and an enjoyable time was had by all present.

Miss Beatrice F. Powley of 180 Highland avenue entertained ten of her friends at a party given in honor of her twelfth birthday, Tuesday afternoon and evening. Games were played and refreshments were served, after which the untangling of a cob web was a source of much fun, each guest receiving a little prize. Those present were: Genevieve Bowen, Gladys Reynolds, Dorothy Dick, Ethel Douglas, Ruth Watts, Lily Malloy, Mildred Malloy, Catherine Tremper, Hester Livingston and Evelyn Kelder.

Masten-Geyer.

Miss Helen Martin Geyer and Edward Crookston Masten were married in the Reformed Church, Wallkill, Easter Sunday. After a wedding trip they will make their home in Wallkill.

Celebrate Wedding Anniversaries.

On Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. George DuBois of Greenkill avenue were joined in celebrating their twenty-fifth (silver) anniversary, by many of their relatives and friends and especially by Mr. and Mrs. William Snyder of Hartford, Connecticut, whose fifteenth wedding anniversary came on the same day. Mr. and Mrs. DuBois were generously remembered with gifts of silver, among them being quite a fine collection of new silver coins. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder were also the recipients of many handsome gifts of cut glass. During the evening delicious refreshments were served.

William Everett has made 75 gallons of syrup.

"Mrs. Tubbs of Shantytown."

"Mrs. Tubbs of Shantytown," a three-act comedy drama in the First Presbyterian Church on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, April 16 and 17 is the story of the every day life of a lady of unconquerable optimism who lives in Shantytown. She says in part: "I don't ever try to be cheerful. When I feel the blues a comin' I just smile, or whistle or sing. Mr. Tubbs always said my voice would scare most anything, so I try to make it scare the blues."

Matters Before the Surrogate.

The will of John Newton Wiseman, who died at New Paltz, April 8, 1915, has been admitted to probate. The entire estate, both personal and real, is left to the wife, Mary M. Wiseman, who is named executrix. The value of the estate is not stated.

The "MISSISSIPPI" Girl Is Coming!

TAPS WIRELESS KEY FOR HIS UNCLE SAM

Baseball has lost another player by reason of the war in the person of Morris Rath, who joined the United States Navy recently. Rath is now learning the fundamentals of wireless in the naval wireless school in Philadelphia. He was given a tryout by several major league teams, and last year made such a good showing with the Salt Lake club of the Pacific Coast league, that Christy Mathewson signed him for a trial with the Cincinnati Reds this year. Rath at one time played second base for the Kansas City club of the American association. The photo shows him operating a wireless key at one of the government naval training stations.

STARS UNHERALDED

Baseball history has proved that the players who develop into the major league stars enter the big show unheralded and unsung.

Wagner, Mathewson, Speaker, Cobb, Collins, Alexander, Johnson and many others made their entrance under modest and, in many instances, unknown circumstances.

Little or nothing was known of Alexander as a minor leaguer. So obscure was he that he was obtained in the draft. He was obliged to prove his worth as a "rookie," and at one time there was some discussion as to whether he would be among those retained during his first year with the Phillies.

GAIN RESPECT FOR CRICKET

British Game, Thought to Be Mild and Harmless, Praised by Boys in Service Abroad.

Occasionally letters from boys in the service abroad show that while they are teaching France and England the beauties of baseball, they are gaining new respect for the British game of cricket, which they had previously thought about as mild and harmless as croquet. One soldier, writing of a cricket game he saw, declares that the British fielders, "while weak on grounders, are pippins on fly balls. They'll go down the field for a long fly, judge it just right, and grab it without gloves. Some of the catches they make would do honor to Roush or Speaker."

DECORATION GIVEN TO CAPTAIN MILLER

Johnny (Dots) Miller, former captain of the St. Louis Cardinals, who is now attached to the 83d company of marines at Paris Island, S. C., has received his first military decoration—the silver crossed guns of an expert marksman.

When he established the monthly shooting record at the Paris Island rifle range on February 23d, Johnny proved that he was as capable of putting steel covered rifle balls right in the center of a bull's eye as he was in throwing the "gill" to bases.

Miller registered a score of 280 points out of a possible 300; shooting on 200, 400, 500 and 1,000 yard ranges. "A fellow can't help but shoot straight, if he pays strict attention to his coach's instruction," says Miller. He is rapidly developing into one of those "double fisted, swamping soldiers of the sea," and says it's a great life.

GOOD CORN CROP VERY IMPORTANT

Scarcity of Suitable Seed in Many Producing States.

WARNING SENT TO FARMERS

Still Possible to Find Some Sound Ears Suitable for Seed—Ready Market for All That Is Not Wanted for Planting.

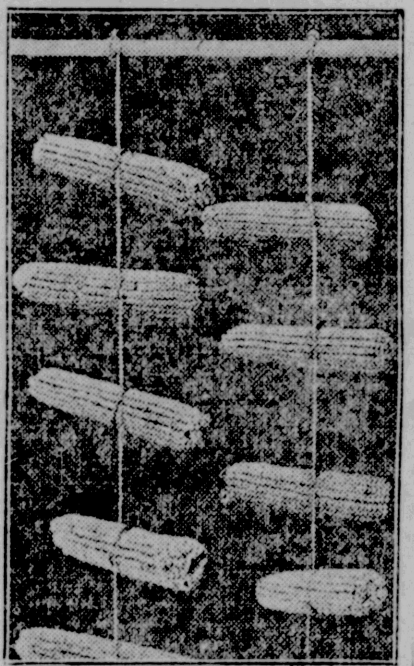

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A good crop of corn cannot be grown without good seed, yet in many of the principal corn-producing states there is a scarcity of suitable seed for planting the 1918 crop. Unless every corn grower saves, and saves carefully, a good supply from which to select the best ears for planting this scarcity will not be averted. The seed-corn scarcity will not take care of itself; the only choice is between making sure now or causing a scarcity in the planting season.

A warning is being sent out by the United States department of agriculture to the farmers of a number of states for which a serious scarcity of seed corn for spring planting in 1918 has been noted. These states include, in whole or part, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Not Too Late to Select Seed Ears.

Little corn of the 1916 crop is available and adapted seed cannot be had from other sections. In this emergency the seed stocks committee of the United States department of agriculture urges farmers not to overlook any possible source of supply. It points out that on many farms in the states where seed corn is scarce, it is still possible to find some sound ears which should be saved for seed. In some cases, however, this sound corn is being fed because the owners do not realize its value nor the need for it. They have been accustomed to planting much better corn and have not stopped to consider that every bushel of seed corn they feed now would, if planted, produce a hundred or even two hundred bushels next year.

Save Sound Ears for Seed.

Under ordinary conditions, it pays to select seed corn in the field and to cure it carefully, but seed so selected and cured is not available for much of the corn acreage to be planted next spring. It will be necessary, therefore, the specialists emphasize, to use the very best seed that is available. Past experience shows that it is better to plant seed of an adapted variety, even though it is poor in germination, than to plant much better seed of an unadapted variety. For this reason, the seed stocks committee urges farmers to pick over their corn and select the sound ears for possible use as seed. If more is saved than is needed, there will be a ready market for it next spring.

Guard Seed Corn From Damage.

This emergency seed should be separated from the immature or moldy corn immediately, to prevent further damage to its vitality. If it is not already dry it should be dried at once and kept at as uniform a temperature as possible. From six to ten kernels from different parts of each ear should be taken and tested for germination. The ears which show all or nearly all dead kernels should be discarded. The remaining ears should then be shelled by hand and the grain from each ear carefully examined, discarding all kernels in which the germs appear to be dead. In this way, it should be possible for many farmers to get seed corn which will germinate from 50 to 90 per cent. This seed can then be planted thickly enough next spring to produce a stand.

Those who are not familiar with making single-ear germination tests of corn can get information on how to make the test from their county agent, from the state experiment station, or by sending to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., for a copy of Farmers' Bulletin 253.

BUILDINGS WHILE YOU WAIT: APPLY TO THE RED CROSS

Portable Houses Shipped to Any Part of France on a Few Hours' Notice.

The American Red Cross in France has established a record for home building. A call came to Paris from "somewhere in France" for three barracks. The Red Cross was told that it would take the workmen at least five days to erect one building. Within that time the Red Cross workers had all three buildings up and ready for occupancy. They employed just 23 men on the job.

Red Cross officials determined some time ago to place "in stock" a number of portable or demountable barracks for immediate use wherever they might be desired.

It was discovered that a Swiss manufacturer had on hand 43 buildings that were not needed by the Italian army, for which they had been constructed.

The Red Cross immediately contracted for the entire number, obtained them and now can ship a home for 40 people to any part of France on a

SCHRYVER'S STORY OF LIFE IN FRANCE

The Freeman will, in a short time, begin publication of a lengthy description of an American soldier's experiences in France by Private Harry E. Schryver of the Railway Engineers one of the first Ulster county men to go overseas. Private Schryver is a former resident of Port Ewen and, as he stated in a letter printed some time ago, worked as "devil" in The Freeman office more than 20 years ago. His story was sent in in installments, all of which passed the British censor. The letters arrived at irregular intervals and not in the order in which they were written and sent, the last one to arrive being the third in a series of six. Private Schryver keeps his eyes open and writes well. His description of personal experiences will be found most interesting and will complete take up several pages of The Freeman. Therefore it will be printed in installments, like a serial story.

HIGHLAND

Highland April 11—Mrs. R. Caldwell and daughter are now located in Edison Dimers house on the state road. They lived formerly on Vine yard avenue.

Dr. Rivenburg left Wednesday for Camp Union. Many here are sorry to have this occur for when the call went in for him to visit a patient he knew his duty and responded readily which any doctor should do but as is often the case with some doctors this we know a patient could be very sick and dead and resurrected before they would get on duty. Dr. Rivenburg's services are greatly appreciated and we know he will return for his country upon the same principles.

Miss Ada Van Nostland has been on a visit to Jenkinson with friends. Mr. and Mrs. Van Aken of Little Park were callers Sunday on Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Decker.

Mrs. Lorain Osterhout is ill at her home with an attack of pleurisy.

Miss Laura Palmer who spent her Easter vacation here left Sunday noon for Brownsville, where she teaches school. She spent a pleasant time while here among her acquaintances.

Edworth League Red Cross meets every Monday evening in the church parlor. They have a large membership and are accomplishing a great deal of work. Mrs. Howard E. Willcox is the one who directs and instructs all. They all work well together which shows unity and harmony for without this not much will be accomplished.

Miss L. Scofield has been visiting in the metropolis the past week.

Rev. G. H. Scofield preached a sermon to members of Adonai Lodge, I. O. O. F. M. E. Sunday morning. The Order of Eastern Star were invited on account of the M. E. Conference at Newburgh many went to hear Bishop Wilson, who is a very eloquent preacher.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Miller of Poughkeepsie spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Davis of Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Bond was united in marriage on Wednesday evening at the home of George Hildebrandt of New York at her home in this place.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. H. Scofield. The bride will remain at home for a few days before leaving for her friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Schantz of Camp Dix N. J. has been home on a few days furlough. His friends were glad to see him. Sorry to know he has to leave again for some spot, yet not knowing but many presume France will be the destination of our boys. When will the awful war be over, is the question we cannot answer.

Several new members were admitted in the M. E. Church at Easter service.

Mrs. Sullivan from this place has spent a short time in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Ferris of Grand Union have returned from New York city where they have been spending a week with relatives and they had a delightful time while there.

Mrs. Mary D. Malloch left here on Monday for a visit in New Rochelle with relatives.

Mrs. Edward Van Demark of Vine yard avenue has returned home after several days spent very pleasantly with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Cooper in Cohoes.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Hudson had guests recently from Peekskill for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Marsh have guests from out of town the past week and they also attended conference at Newburgh Sunday.

Mr. Myron Terpening was a guest of relatives in Poughkeepsie last week.

Last Friday evening a number of friends of Miss Anna Ganse gave her a party at her home on Vineyard avenue.

The said party had a fine time. They indulged in card playing and other games and later a most refreshing refreshment was served and some time spent in sociability. At a late hour all departed voting. Miss Ganse and her father thoroughly understood the art of host and hostess.

The lecture for Red Cross on last Thursday evening at the moving picture house was fine giving every one a good description of what was going on over there. Still with all it was interesting. The building was well filled and people well pleased.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Atkins entertained a young lady relative from New York city several days last week.

The Rev. Edwin Hunt, a former pastor of the M. E. Church here and now stationed at Bedford Hills, Mass., was here a week end guest of Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Feeter. He has been at the meeting of the M. E. Conference in Newburgh.

Mrs. Julia C. Decker has returned from Poughkeepsie for the week end after spending several days with her sister in New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Lert and son,

Harold motored to Newburgh last Sunday and listened to the grand sermon delivered by Bishop Wilson at St. John's Church where the conference was held. He is a very eloquent and forceful speaker and knew just what he was talking about. Those who were not present from this place missed a great treat for seldom one has the opportunity to listen to such a grand preacher.

It has been told to us that the Rev. and Mrs. Turner will live in this place for the summer. Still we have heard nothing in regard to it from the family so we can not say for certain.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner are a good foundation for the future. We only hope that they will be a blessing to the church and the community.

opening the third. They had a good attendance and all business was legally presented and carried. These people after their office work is completed have a pleasant recreation. They enjoy games, music and a fine social time. At their next meeting on Wednesday evening the 15th there are to have a "Hot" lunch and we were informed on a number that a toll time is anticipated. Full attendance is expected.

Mrs. Philip Schary was a shopper in Poughkeepsie on Tuesday.

Captain R. H. Decker spent Tuesday in Pleasant Valley with his brother and wife.

The Grange will hold their regular meeting April 14. The master would appreciate having all of the members present.

C. Foster had an auction of furniture, carpets and so forth on Wednesday and realized fair prices.

The Chautauque will be held here on July 4th to 8th inclusive. We hope the programs will be first-class.

Many from this place attended the great parade in Poughkeepsie last Saturday. It was the largest one ever held there and was a very fine sight and people congregated from north south, east and west from the looks of the streets for it was impossible to get through the crowd.

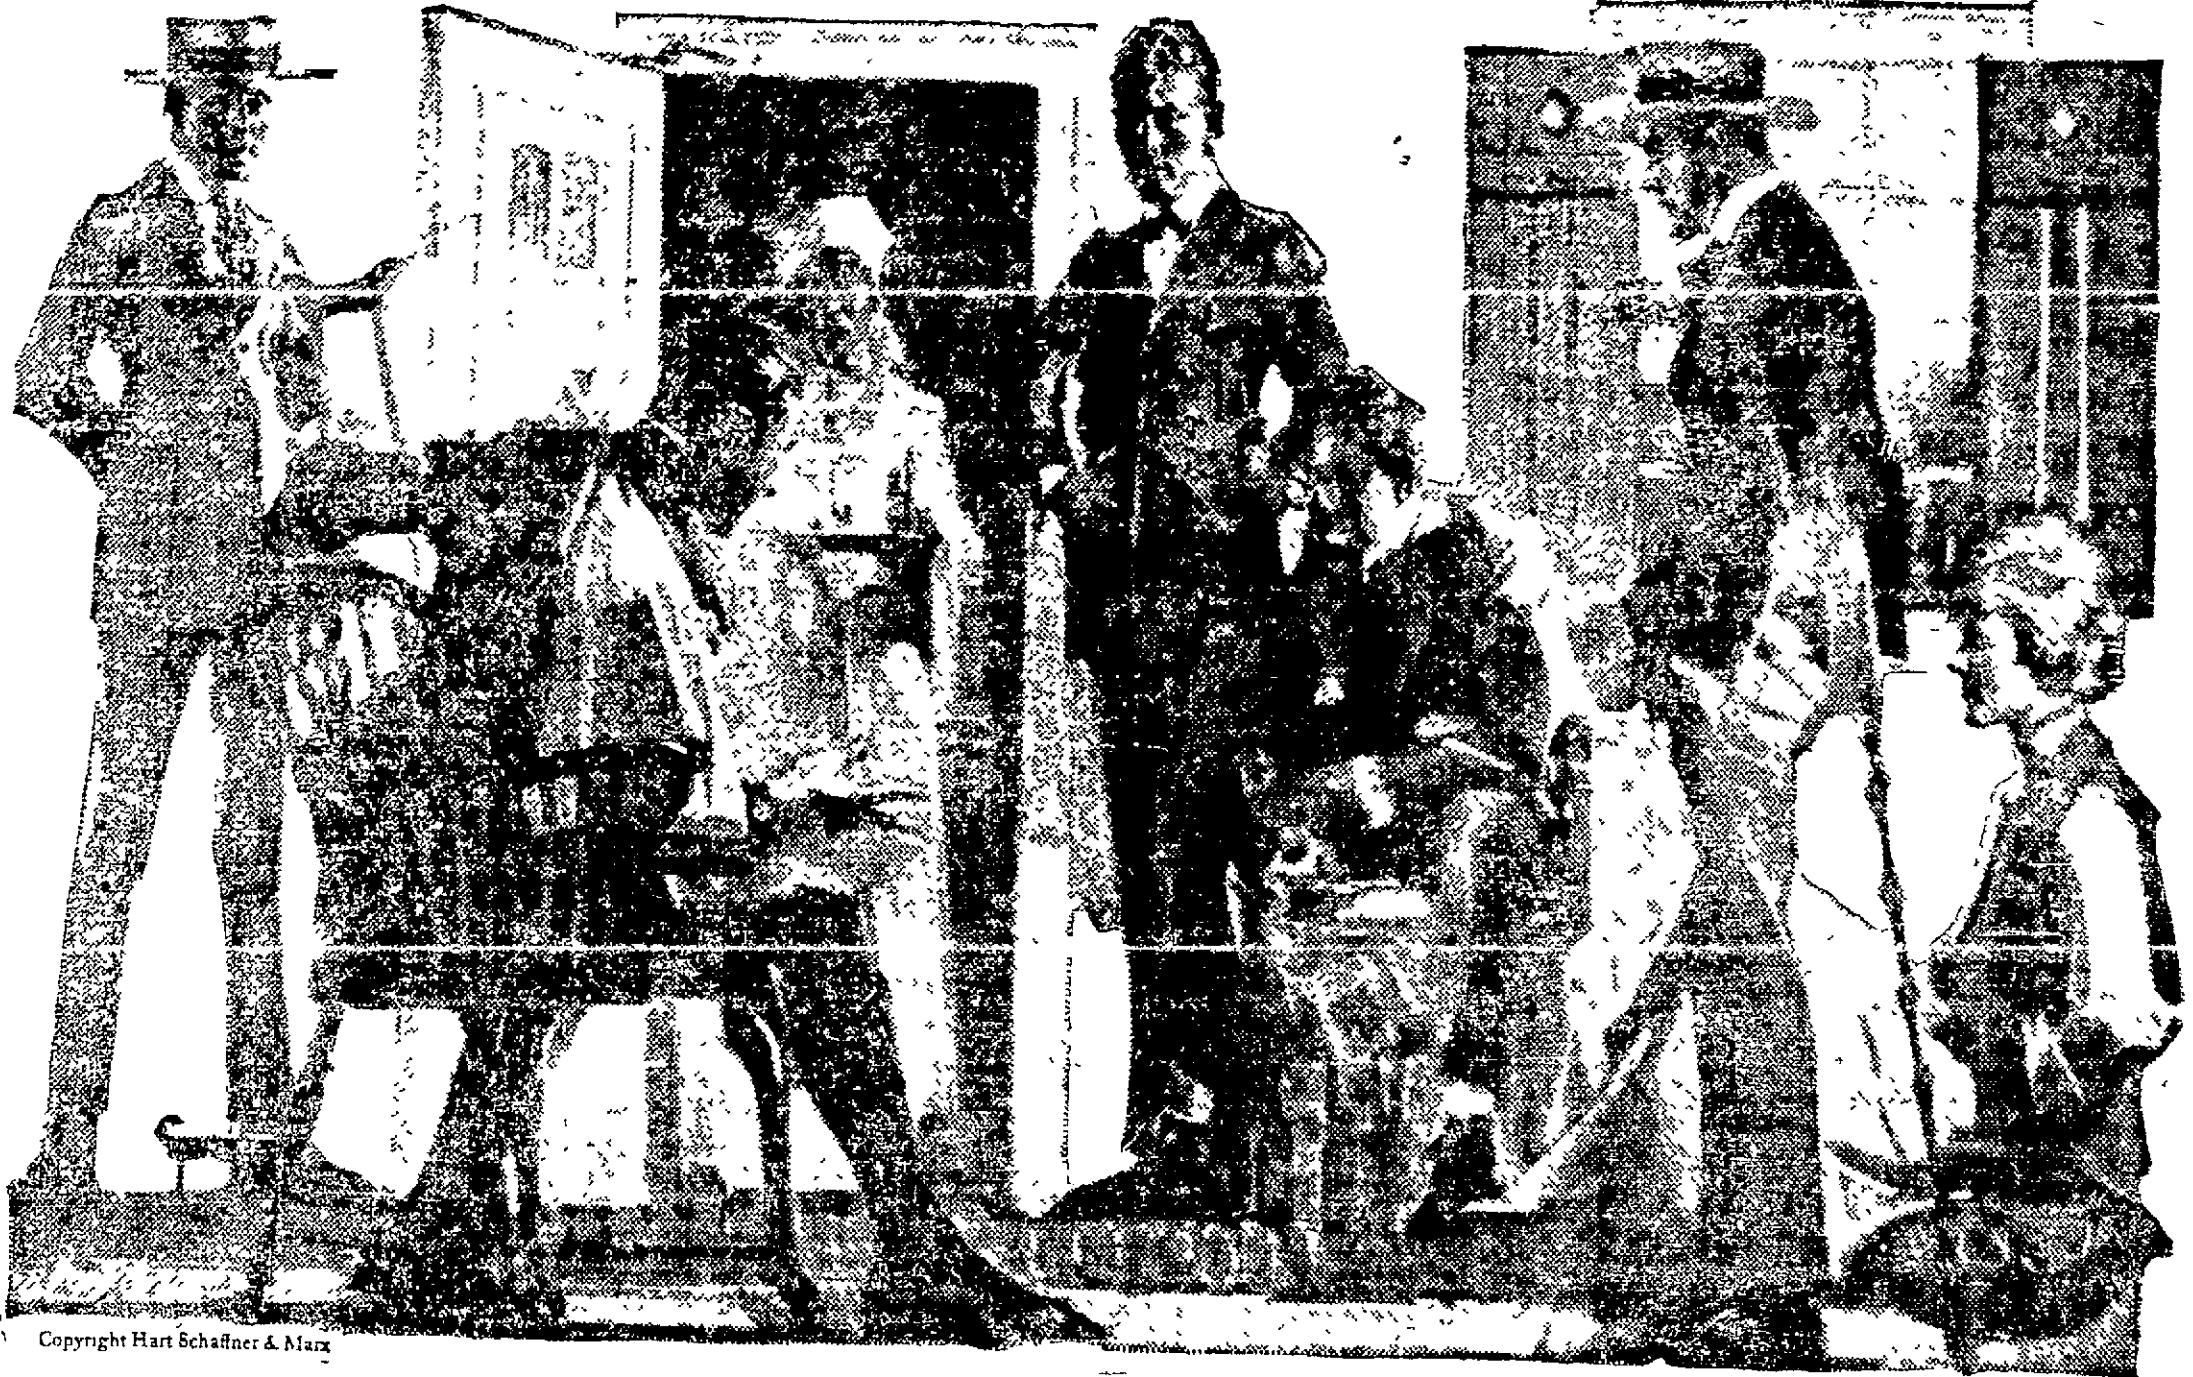

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lent entertained guests from Poughkeepsie recently at their home on Milton avenue.

Woodstock Lidian Society. The annual public meeting and entertainment of the Lidian Society of the Reformed Church of Woodstock will be held in the basement of the church on Tuesday, April 16th. A short business meeting will be held after which a fine program will be given by the young people of the church. At the close a free will offering will be taken. Ice cream and cake will be on sale. If stormy on 16th it will be held the next evening.

OAKES MAN WINS A $500 VERDICT

A supreme court jury Tuesday awarded William J. Manning, of Oakes, Ulster county, a verdict of $500 in his action brought against the city of Poughkeepsie. Charles L. McCann, with James E. Carroll, of counsel, represented the plaintiff, while the action was defended by Corporation Counsel Worrall, with Robert Wilkinson, of counsel. The action was tried before Justice J. Addison Young.

The action was the result of an accident which occurred on the sidewalk in front of 52 Main street on June 21, 1917. Manning claimed that while walking along on the sidewalk he stepped on an iron cover and the same gave way, throwing him to the walk, with the result that his sight was impaired and he suffered internal injuries. The action was brought to recover damages to the extent of $10,000.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The Knights of the Cross and Crown of the St. James M. E. Church gave a banquet Monday evening to the young women who took part in the play, "Look Out for Paint." The young men proved themselves royal entertainers and an enjoyable time was had by all present.

Miss Beatrice F. Powley of 139 Highland avenue entertained ten of her friends at a party given in honor of her twelfth birthday. Tuesday afternoon and evening. Games were played and refreshments were served, after which the untangling of a cob web was a source of much fun. Each guest receiving a little prize. Those present were: Genevieve Bowen, Gladys Reynolds, Dorothy Dick, Ethel Douglas, Ruth Watts, Lily Mallory, Mildred Mallory, Catherine Trampier, Hester Livingston and Evelyn Kelder.

Masten-Geyer.

Miss Helen Martin Geyer and Edward Crookston Masten were married in the Reformed Church, Wallkill, Easter Sunday. After a wedding trip they will make their home in Wallkill.

Celebrate Wedding Anniversaries.

On Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. George DuBois of Greenkill avenue were joined in celebrating their twenty-fifth (silver) anniversary, by many of their relatives and friends and especially by Mr. and Mrs. William Snyder of Hartford, Connecticut, whose fifteenth wedding anniversary came on the same day. Mr. and Mrs. DuBois were generously remembered with gifts of silver, among them being quite a fine collection of new silver coins. Mr. and Mrs. Snyder were also the recipients of many handsome gifts of cut glass. During the evening delicious refreshments were served.

William Everett has made 75 gallons of syrup.

"Mrs. Tubbs of Shantytown."

"Mrs. Tubbs of Shantytown," a three-act comedy drama in the First Presbyterian Church on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, April 16 and 17 is the story of the every day life of a lady of unquenchable optimism who lives in Shantytown. She says in part: "I don't ever try to be cheerful. When I feel the blues a comin' I just smile, or whistle or sing. Mr. Tubbs always said my voice would scare most anything, so I try to make it scare the blues."

Matters Before the Surrogate.

TAPS WIRELESS KEY FOR HIS UNCLE SAM

Baseball has lost another player by reason of the war in the person of Morris Rath, who joined the United States Navy recently. Rath is now learning the fundamentals of wireless in the naval wireless school in Philadelphia. He was given a tryout by several major league teams, and last year made such a good showing with the Salt Lake club of the Pacific Coast league, that Christy Mathewson signed him for a trial with the Cincinnati Reds this year. Rath at one time played second base for the Kansas City club of the American association. The photo shows him operating a wireless key at one of the government naval training stations.

STARS UNHERALDED

Baseball history has proved that the players who develop into the major league stars enter the big show unheralded and unsung.

Wagner, Mathewson, Spenger, Cobb, Collins, Alexander, Johnson and many others made their entrance under modest and, in many instances, unknown circumstances.

Little or nothing was known of Alexander as a minor leaguer. So obscure was he that he was obtained in the draft. He was obliged to prove his worth as a "rookie," and at one time there was some discussion as to whether he would be among those retained during his first year with the Phillies.

GAIN RESPECT FOR CRICKET

Occasionally letters from boys in the service abroad show that while they are teaching France and England the beauties of baseball, they are gaining new respect for the British game of cricket, which they had previously thought about as mild and harmless as croquet.

One soldier, writing of a cricket game he saw, declares that the British soldiers, "while weak on grounders, are pippins on fly balls. They'll go down the field for a long fly. Judge it just right, and grab it without gloves. Some of the catches they make would do honor to Roush or Speaker."

DECORATION GIVEN TO CAPTAIN MILLER

Johnny (Dots) Miller, former captain of the St. Louis Cardinals, who is now attached to the 88th company of marines at Paris Island, S. C., has received his first military decoration—the silver crossed guns of an expert rifleman.

When he established the monthly shooting record at the Paris Island rifle range on February 23d, Johnny proved that he was as capable of putting steel covered rifle balls right in the center of a bull's eye as he was in throwing the "fill" to bases.

Miller registered a score of 230 points out of a possible 300; shooting on 200, 400, 500 and 1,000 yard ranges. "A fellow can't help but shoot straight, if he pays strict attention to his coach's instruction," says Miller. He is rapidly developing into one of those "double fives," scrapping soldiers of the sec. and says it's a great life.

LITTLE PICKUPS OF SPORT

The fans of Philadelphia are largely die, electric and palm leaf.

Among other innovations the Western league may this year try the "twilight" games idea.

Outfielder Joe Kelly of the Boston Braves has been put in the first class for the next draft call.

Chet Thomas, the catcher traded by the Red Sox to Connie Mack, declares he is through with baseball.

Branch Rickey announces he has a new marvel. The latter's name is Rube Kotelnick. That's enough!

Connie Mack has taken on among others a young pitcher named Bob Coyle, who came from Cincinnati.

Jack Hendricks may think managing the Cards is a big job. But suppose he had to manage the bolsheriki.

Birmingham of the Southern league, with Al Ellis lost to the army, has signed Bill Waldron to play the outfield.

The New York legislature has shelved the bill introduced for modification of the blue laws so as to term it baseball on Sunday.

Eddie Mulligan, former Cub infielder, who is now at Camp Funston with a draft quota, may be appointed assistant athletic director.

A Pittsburgh sport writer has analyzed the figures and concluded that the Pirates will be a heavier hitting team this year than last.

The National league has put the kibosh on impolite coaching. But how can you teach a bone-headed baserunner anything by making love to him?

Pitcher Jim Bluejacket, who has "belonged" to several clubs in the past few years, is to get a trial with the Columbus American association club this season.

The Muskegon club, which operated a team for two years in the Central league but found the going too hard, has disposed of all its assets in the way of players.

Mike Gonzales, Cardinal catcher and a Cuban, will bring another islander with him to St. Louis. The latter is Oscar Tuero, a pitcher. Oscar has already signed a contract.

Wheeler Dell, the big Brooklyn hurler, is in Uncle Sam's service learning how to make a tank jump shell holes. He expects to become a pilot of one of the land monsters.

Eddie Cole, formerly with St. Paul in the American association and Bloomington in the Three-I league, has quit baseball to help Uncle Sam and is now in an army camp in the South.

John McGraw may import a Cuban infielder. The youngster is named Heriex and made a good impression on the Giant leader while the latter was on the islands. Cuban fans call him a second Maranville. He is twenty years old.

GOOD CORN CROP VERY IMPORTANT

Scarcity of Suitable Seed in Many Producing States.

WARNING SENT TO FARMERS

Still Possible to Find Some Sound Ears Suitable for Seed—Ready Market for All That Is Not Wanted for Planting.

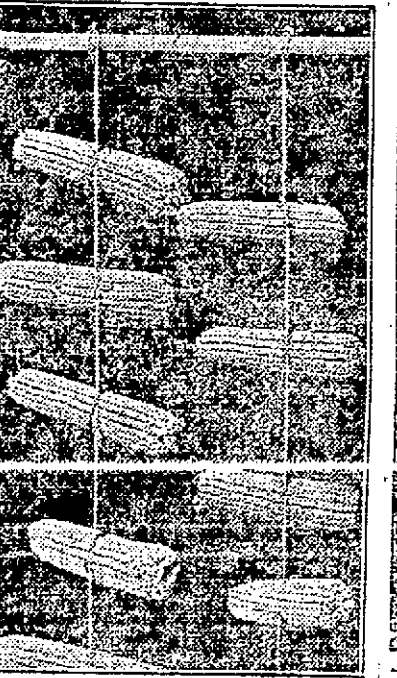

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A good crop of corn cannot be grown without good seed, yet in many of the principal corn-producing states there is a scarcity of suitable seed for planting the 1918 crop. Unless every corn grower saves, and saves carefully, a good supply from which to select the best ears for planting, this scarcity will not be averted. The seed-corn scarcity will not take care of itself; the only choice is between making sure now or causing a scarcity in the planting season.

A warning is being sent out by the United States department of agriculture to the farmers of a number of states for which a serious scarcity of seed corn for spring planting in 1918 has been noted. These states include, in whole or part, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota.

Not Too Late to Select Seed Ears.

Little corn of the 1916 crop is available and adapted seed cannot be had from other sections. In this emergency the seed stocks committee of the United States department of agriculture urges farmers not to overlook any possible source of supply. It points out that on many farms in the states where seed corn is scarce, it is still possible to find some sound ears which should be saved for seed. In some cases, however, this sound corn is being fed because the owners do not realize its value nor the need for it. They have been accustomed to planting much better corn and have not stopped to consider that every bushel of seed corn they feed now would, if planted, produce a hundred or even two hundred bushels next year.

Seed Corn Tied High and Dry Out of Reach of Rats and Mice.

Save Sound Ears for Seed.

Under ordinary conditions, it pays to select seed corn in the field and to cure it carefully, but seed so selected and cured is not available for much of the corn acreage to be planted next spring. It will be necessary, therefore, the specialists emphasize, to use the very best seed that is available. Past experience shows that it is better to plant seed of an adapted variety, even though it is poor in germination, than to plant much better seed of an unadapted variety. For this reason, the seed stocks committee urges farmers to pick over their corn and select the sound ears for possible use as seed. If more is saved than is needed, there will be a ready market for it next spring.

Guard Seed Corn From Damage.

This emergency seed should be separated from the immature or moldy corn immediately, to prevent further damage to its vitality. If it is not already dry it should be dried at once and kept at as uniform a temperature as possible. From six to ten kernels from different parts of each ear should be taken and tested for germination. The ears which show all or nearly all dead kernels should be discarded. The remaining ears should then be shelled by hand and the grain from each ear carefully examined, discarding all kernels in which the germs appear to be dead. In this way, it should be possible for many farmers to get seed corn which will germinate from 50 to 60 per cent. This seed can then be planted thickly enough next spring to produce a stand.

Those who are not familiar with making single-ear germination tests of corn can get information on how to make the test from their county agent, from the state experiment station, or by sending to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., for a copy of Farmers' Bulletin 253.

Take Care to Prevent Bleat.

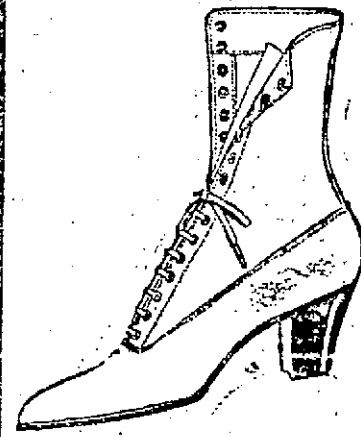

When alfalfa is pastured, great care should be taken to prevent bleat.

BUILDINGS WHILE YOU WAIT; APPLY TO THE RED CROSS

Portable Houses Shipped to Any Part of France on a Few Hours' Notice.

The American Red Cross in France has established a record for home building. A call came to Paris from "somewhere in France" for three barracks. The Red Cross was told that it would take the workmen at least five days to erect one building. Within that time the Red Cross workers had all three buildings up and ready for occupancy. They employed just 23 men on the job.

Red Cross officials determined some time ago to place "in stock" a number of portable or demountable barracks for immediate use wherever they might be desired.

It was discovered that a Swiss manufacturer had on hand 43 buildings that were not needed by the Italian army, for which they had been constructed.

The Red Cross immediately contracted for the entire number, obtained them and now can ship a home for 40 people to any part of France on a

The buildings are unique in construction. Each weighs about five tons and can be easily shipped in one freight car. Unlike many demountable or "knock-down" buildings, these are

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

Owing to the shortness of time for advertising and selling tickets, the senior class has decided to postpone the dance Friday night, April 12, to Friday night, April 26. Please do not allow this postponement to dampen your interest in the dance. The proceeds are still for the benefit of the Red Cross and otherwise things are just as they were told in Tuesday night's Freeman. The alumni of the high school and of the two old academies are invited and asked to help support this cause.

The prospect of the junior class having former Ambassador to Germany Gerard to lecture in Kingston either the latter part of this month or the first part of next, are very good. The proceeds of the lecture will be for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Wednesday afternoon immediately after school a mass meeting of the girls was held at which Miss Woolsey, Miss Olga Owens and Miss Emily Crosby spoke concerning the duty of the high school girls in connection with Red Cross work. It is hoped the meeting will result in the high school girls turning out a greater amount of surgical dressings in the near future. The girls who can and will not do this work after yesterday's meeting most surely lack that spirit of true Americanism and patriotism that ought to be found in every human being in the United States.

DENY DEAD HORSE CHARGE.

Bach & Shapiro Refute Mr. Alcon's Charges in Great Detail.

Mr. Alcon's statements as published in The Freeman of April 10th are false and we emphatically deny same. We use the yard for spreading and drying bedding, not for dead horses as Mr. Alcon alleges. We have box stalls in which we treat our sick horses and if it so happens that they die it is in the box stall and are always taken away by Mr. Fischang within the hour. The dead horse can only be seen by persons passing through our stable and see them in the box stall and we, the firm, will forfeit $100.00 to Mr. Alcon or any person that can prove we had a dead horse lying in the backyard. As for water running from our yard into his cellar is also false. His leader pipe leading from his roof comes out about half way between his house and the gutter. The fall of the sidewalk is toward his house and all water coming through the leaders flows back into Mr. Alcon's cellar. This water as we state above, discharges all the water from the roof and when it rains it is impossible for any person to pass under it without getting drenched. We would ask the city authorities to look into this matter.

MOMBACCUS HEIGHTS.

Mombaccus Heights, April 11.—Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Smith and son, Howard, Mrs. Harry Smith, Rev. A. Quick and wife and Thomas Morehouse attended the funeral of Benjamin Morehouse at Pataunkunk last Wednesday, the Rev. A. Quick officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Etten autotowed from Bloomington and spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Van Etten, and called on their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Depuy.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith and little daughter autotowed to Kerhonkson on Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hartelius entertained auto visitors from out of town on Sunday.

Richard Churchill of Leibhardt was a caller in this place Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Gray, Jr., of Palentown, took his sister, Miss Maud, who was also due at Minnewaska, and Miss Ethel Hartelius to their destination by auto on Monday morning.

It is rumored that Arthur Smith, son of Abram Smith of this place, has been married recently to a young lady in Walden, where he is employed.

Harold Van Etten was a guest for supper at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. Depuy, and accompanied them to spend the evening with the Hartelius family.

Refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee will be on sale after the entertainment on Saturday evening next.

A merry crowd, seventeen in number, gave Ambrose Van Etten a surprise party on Friday evening. It also answered the double purpose of a farewell party for Miss Ethel Hartelius, who left for Minnewaska on Monday, a birthday celebration for one of the gentlemen guests. Every one was in a merry-making mood and an extraordinary good time was the result. The supper was abundant and unsurpassed. This is the second time Mr. Van Etten has been honored which speaks well for his hospitality and his invitation to "come again" will no doubt be accepted some future time. This makes the full dozen that has been held in this neighborhood since last fall. Who will dare to have superstition and make it thirteen?

Howard and Elroy Smith, Miss Ethel Hartelius and brothers, George and Clifford, enjoyed an auto trip to the Ashokan dam Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith and children spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Green and family.

A party of young people from this place enjoyed a hike to the Woodville place at Brownville on Sunday.

3045 BOOKS FOR OUR SOLDIERS

Library Report Shows Good Work in Kingston But Books Will Still Be Gladly Received.

The City Library reports that the people of Kingston have contributed 3,045 books since March 18 for the use of our soldiers and sailors, and that more books are still coming in.

It is to be hoped that week after week they will continue to come in steadily, for our men will need books as long as the war lasts, and the supply must be constantly replenished. All the public is urged to form the habit of turning in their new books as soon as they have read them. In this way, a constant stream of fresh books into the camps will be assured, and a most effective barrage established against the blue devils of loneliness and depression.

All books received will be prepared for use in accordance with the simple rules laid down by the Library War Service of the American Library Association and will be shipped to such points as the A. L. A. may designate. The needs of all camps and stations in this vicinity will be taken care of first. Most of the books collected along the Atlantic seaboard will be shipped to France as rapidly as possible. At least half a million are needed there at once and a constant stream of replacements must be maintained for the wastage will be very great. Hence the call for books, books, and more books.

The A. L. A. has built up an organization capable of handling thousands and thousands. That the books will be forthcoming cannot be doubted.

Into these creamy suds you dip your garment. Don't rub—just work the article about briskly in the lather. The dirt dissolves and drops right out into the suds!

Rubbing soap on a delicate material, and rubbing it out again is what ruins the fabric. It weakens and breaks the delicate threads.

It twists and pulls the garment out of shape. And in spite of careful rinsing, bits of soap usually cling to the fabric to stain and discolor it.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 11, 1918.

The man who has been howling about the increased cost of living since the war began and protesting vigorously against any government regulation by which he would be unable to charge what he pleased for his product ought to be well pleased at the prospect of government regulation of prices to be charged to the purchaser of shoes and clothing, because such regulation will be for his benefit. If he is a farmer and fruit grower ought he to be further pleased at the prospect of regulation of coastwise shipping and the order which will prevent grape fruit being brought to the United States from Cuba after April 14th because of the necessity of utilizing ship cargo space for war essentials, because thereby the demand for home grown fruits is increased and already the embargo on California fruits is so severe because of the necessity of using the railroads for transporting war material that people are planning to get neighborhood fruits as soon as they come in market. As long as somebody else is being regulated for our benefit we ought all to be pleased. It is only when regulation affects us that we are displeased. Yet there is no difference between one class and another; the American soldier is fighting in France and will continue to fight there for the protection of every American, the rich and the poor, the kicker and the willing worker, the regulated and the unregulated. Most people who are regulated profess to see in their own cases certain elements which to their way of thinking should exempt them from regulation. There can be no such favored few while the war lasts but all must be subject to regulations which are for the benefit of the whole country and our Allies. We must accept regulation by our own government now and thereby produce efficiency which will win the war or we will lose the war and be subject to regulation by the Kaiser. It is easy to make a choice.

PREVENTION AND THE GUARD.

Revelations regarding German spy plots and the work of German spies in damaging United States Government supplies and plants which are engaged in Government work call attention to the need of keeping a sleepless watch on the activities of the spies in the grass who would enjoy the benefits of American liberty and American protection, yet do anything in their power to injure America and the war work we are engaged in. Neither the work of the spies nor the efforts to prevent damage are accompanied by brass bands, but both are performed silently. Prevention is always worth a dozen post mortem examinations and the work of prevention which falls to Federal and State authorities must necessarily be of a kind that receives but slight publicity and its rewards are in the knowledge of patriotic accomplishment rather than in public honors or adequate financial reward. The satisfaction of work well done must invariably supply the lack of emolument and embellishment which is received for activity in other spheres of life, and war invariably finds men and women displaying a patriotic devotion to duty which at other times would appear impossible.

Part of the work of prevention is carried on in Ulster county in a quiet way that attracts little notice. It is the work connected with the constant guard which must be maintained of the aqueduct which carries water from the Ashokan reservoir to the distributing reservoirs in Westchester county from which New York city draws its hourly supply. Since before the beginning of the war the aqueduct has been guarded at all times. The work, which was begun by the National Guard of New York and continued in part by the Guard after it had passed into Federal service, is performed now by men comprising the New York Guard. Two regiments especially organized for constant and continuous service along the aqueduct and state barge canal perform this work so that the entire Guard is not called out. Most of these men have served in the National Guard and were discharged after returning from service on the Mexican border, a number of others are carrying experience and training before their order number is reached in the Federal draft. It is monotonous work, there is no chance of sharing the excitement of battle which the regular or the National Army anticipates and without opportunity for glory. It is being done by the men for a dollar and a quarter a day.

Officials at Albany are discussing the plan of making an appropriation to defray the expenses of sending the New York Guard to camp during the coming summer. Camp experience and actual experience in performing guard work are dissimilar. A week or two in camp for Guardsmen in the old days when there was no thought of war was accompanied by more or less work which was difficult to the men who had been accustomed only to Army drills but the experience was regarded much in the light of an outing. With actual war conditions existing it is unnecessary to provide a camp outing and more practical results would be obtained by getting the New York Guard to work on actual guard duty within the State, for the period which otherwise would be spent at camp if the appropriation is made by the Legislature. If we have a preparedness program, it might as well be complete and have practical results as the goal. Putting the New York Guard on duty will add to its efficiency, cause it to appreciate the work being performed by the two Provisional regiments now on continuous duty and be an indication of appreciation of the work the latter have been and are now doing. Preparedness is one half of the work of prevention.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"How did Hodgson get his reputation as an authority on apples?"
"By never talking for publication."—Life.

"You don't seem to take much interest in history." "I'm afraid I'm too busy," replied Senator Sorghum.
"You see, history is publicity that comes too late to be any good in a campaign."—Washington Star.

"Too bad about Tom and the girl he's engaged to. Neither one of them is good enough for the other."
"Where did you get that idea?"
"I've been talking the matter over with both families."—Boston Transcript.

"I thought I knew what it was to have responsibilities," said the head of a large concern. "But you found yourself mistaken." "Yes. My wife went away, leaving a puddle, a Maltese cat, and a bowl of goldfish in my care."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

One on Him.

A cyclist who stopped at a village inn boasted about his abilities as a rider to such an extent that the landlord ventured to make a wager with him.
"Look here, mister," said the innkeeper, "you can't ride up and down this road 'till the church clock strikes six."
"Done," said the cyclist. "It's just close to six now," and the next minute he was speeding down the road.
After about an hour's riding the cyclist succumbed to one of the bystanders, of whom many had assembled.
"I say, has the church clock struck 6 yet?"
"No, you idiot," was the blunt reply. "Our church clock never strikes at all."—London Tit-Bits.

Right to Home.

"Good morning, judge," said the prisoner cheerfully.
"You seem in a good humor for a man who has spent the night in jail."
"So I am, your honor. I had a good night's rest and that always refreshes me. You see, my wife is a timorous woman, and when I sleep at home I'm compelled to investigate many strange noises. No doubt there were burglars all around me last night, but I didn't have to get out of bed and look for them."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Load Enough On Him.

There had been a cave-in at a place where laborers were excavating for a cellar, and one of the men had been buried under the debris. His companions were working feverishly at his rescue.
Kapo alive Pat. We're rescuin' ye, cried his rescuers.
Is big Delany up there wid ye? quizzed Pat.
Sure he is.
Ask him to please step off the roons. I've enough on top of me w/out him.
Fate.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

April 11, 1898.—Miss Alice Haines and James Crook married.
Reception of the Fourteenth Separate Company at the armory.

April 11, 1908.—Barn of Ernest Kellerman on East Chester street destroyed by fire. Two horses and several wagons and sleighs were burned. Charles Rorer's barn on Hunter street was wiped out by fire. Three horses and an automobile were burned.
The body of Jason Krom, 18 years old, of Rosendale, was found on railroad tracks at West Camp.

"Wool" From Cork.
The depa: out of overseas trade has been informed through a reliable channel that a Spanish firm is manufacturing "wool" from cork, which it is claimed, may with advantage be substituted for natural wool in the manufacture of mattresses, pillows, quilts, etc. This material is stated to be cleaner and lighter than wool.

WOMEN'S HOME DEFENSE COM.

The executive committee of the Women's Branch of the Home Defense Committee of Ulster County, held its first meeting in the new office of the organization at No. 44 Main street, on Wednesday afternoon. This office which has been set aside for this work is adjacent to that occupied by the County Food Administrator, William C. Shafer, on the second floor of the Hasbrouck building. The office, which will be headquarters for all sorts and kinds of women's war work in both city and county, is neatly equipped with the necessary office furnishings, including typewriter, etc. Here, too, is to be found all the literature relative to the work of the Women's Branch of the Home Defense, together with maps, posters, diagrams, etc., etc. Any of the county representatives of this work are welcome to come to these headquarters at any time, and will receive a hearty greeting. Especially are the heads of committees urged to frequently visit the headquarters to keep themselves posted as to the latest work in efficiently carrying out their special war activities.

During the business session a communication was received from Mrs. Chester Young of Waverling, stating that she had succeeded in organizing nine community centers in her field in the county. This news was received with the appreciation due it.

The resignation of Mrs. Everett Fowler as chairman of the membership committee was received and was accepted with sincere regret by the executive committee, and Mrs. Fowler was to be so notified, at the same time being informed of the committee's appreciation of her services.

In compliance with the request from the State Branch of the Women's Home Defense Committee, it was voted to institute an information bureau at the present office. Mrs. C. R. Hall was appointed chairman of this bureau, which does not at all promise to answer any and all of the questions that may be put to it by the men and women of the county, on multitudinous subjects. It is, however, promise to either answer the questions propounded or else to get them answered, the questioner, leaving his or her name and address, that the desired information may be sent as speedily as possible to them.

It is planned to have this Information Bureau open at the office certain hours each week—the same to be later published in The Freeman in order to operate the bureau with the least possible burden to any one, all women, however young or mature, who will be willing to volunteer at least an hour a week or every two weeks to taking charge of the bureau—and it should be emphasized that they are not expected to answer all questions but to get them answered.

One thing was made emphatic at the beginning of the meeting and was continually noted, and that was, that the Women's Branch of the Home Defense Committee and its sub-committees will not assume the initiative in any work that is being done in any way by any other organization, its one duty being to co-ordinate and co-operate with all other organizations, giving particular care not to duplicate work of any sort.

It may be interesting to the public in general and all women of the city and county in particular—for every such woman is by virtue of her American womanhood a member of the Women's Branch of the Home Defense Committee of Ulster County—to know somewhat of the work already accomplished by this organization.

The first work of the organization was to put out through the city and county, food pledge cards, followed up with kitchen cards and window cards.

A committee of which Mrs. C. R. Hall was chairman visited all hotels, restaurants and lunch wagons in the city, urging the proprietors to observe the food conservation laws and many signed questionnaire blanks.

A committee of which Mrs. John G. Van Ert is chairman, met with the Parent-Teacher Associations of the city and arranged for meat substitute demonstrations which were given by Miss Stuart, county agent, at the high school, parochial school, and the graded schools of Kingston. Fuel Administrator Judge John G. Van Ert asked the organization to ascertain the amount of cord wood to be cut this year throughout the county, and 19 out of 20 townships sent in reports. A committee of which Mrs. C. W. Hasbrouck was chairman interviewed all local coal and wood merchants as to the possibility of their handling extra supplies of cord wood in case of coal shortage next winter.

Food Administrator William C. Shafer asked the Women's Branch of the Home Defense of Ulster County to address 8,000 envelopes and enclose in some recipes and printed matter relative to food conservation, and to mail the same throughout the city and county.

QUO VADIS IN PICTURES.

Work of Famous Polish Writer at Polish Church.
Quo Vadis, or "Where Are You Going," the wonderful photo drama of Rome in the time of Nero, from the immortal novel of Henryk Sienkiewicz, will be presented at the Immaculate Conception parish, Delaware avenue, on April 25 and 26. The book of Quo Vadis by Henryk Sienkiewicz, translated from the Polish by Jeremiah Curtin, is essentially an historical and a serious production. All intelligent readers know of it. It is, indeed, less a novel, than a picture of manners, a story of social, intellectual and political conditions. In form of story, it shows in reality a true social picture of the Roman usage and custom in the Imperial age; the spirit of the time and thought and feeling of the Roman people during the reign of the last and most cruel Caesar—Nero. From the moral content described in Quo Vadis Christianity issued as the leading force in history and civilization. Quo Vadis appeals not only to the Polish people because its author is their beloved Sienkiewicz but on account of its merit it produced a sensational success throughout Europe and America. It is well known to the American people, of whom, Henryk Sienkiewicz, after his extensive travel in this country, had the highest ideals of praise as the nation's noblest qualities of peace, love of freedom, justice and universal brotherhood. Quo Vadis arouses a deep patriotism, showing the fall of the brutal despot Nero, and similar to whom will never be allowed to extend their hand to this country of real Democracy. Between the acts of Quo Vadis there will be also shown the views of Kingston City and some of the prominent public and private buildings. The church choir will sing the American anthems—My Country and Columbia.

PALENTOWN.

Palentown, April 10.—William Dymond is in Kingston attending court. He was drawn as juror on the Thomas Malone case which began last Monday.

Mrs. Frank Reaves and children called on Mrs. H. Traver Saturday afternoon.

Miss Maude Gray went Monday to Lake Minnewaska where she has employment for the summer season.

Those who called on the Levie Laid Farm Sunday were David Palen, Justice Gray, Vernon Shaw and David Coons.

Mrs. Minnie Barringer and daughter, Bessie, and Mrs. A. C. Chambers of Schoharie, spent last Monday with Mrs. Freeman Roosa in this place.

Mrs. Wilson Gray and daughter, Jennie, were out driving Sunday. They called on Mrs. Jesse Shurter, also Mrs. Nora Barringer in Samsonville.

Some of the school children are very much disappointed to learn that their teacher is not going to be with them another term. She has gotten them greatly interested in their school work.

Any one wishing to purchase a yoke of steers, 3 years old, will do well to call on John Traver.

Mrs. H. J. Traver, son and daughter, spent a few hours with her daughter, Mrs. Jesse Shurter in Samsonville Sunday last.

Harry Coons, who was employed at Poughkeepsie for the winter, will return home the coming Saturday to begin working on his farm if the weather proves favorable.

David Coons spent Sunday afternoon with his schoolmate, Mildred Traver.

UNDERNEATH THE CITY HALL DOME

Cops Receive Books on Care of Babies—Water Situation Normal—Police Court Quiet—Street Department Busy.

There has been considerable amusement occasioned among the members of the police force when the mail man the other day delivered at police headquarters little booklets on "The Care of the Baby" from the state health department. The amusement was caused by the fact that some of the single cops also received a copy of the booklet.

At the water board office this morning it was stated that the water situation in Kingston was again normal. There is, and has been plenty of water all winter. Fewer leaks are being reported.

There were no cases in police court today, and the police found the city quiet during the night.

Members of the street department are busy today repairing the brick pavement which had been torn up in search of gas leaks. The department has not started any street repair work this season yet, but as soon as weather conditions permit work will be resumed.

If the bill for the two days for the local option election is signed by Governor Whitman it will mean additional work for the police department. Under the provision of the bill it provides that a policeman must be stationed at the polling place all night to watch the ballot boxes. The "dry" and the "wet" are also allowed to furnish two watchers each to see that there is no tampering with the ballot boxes. This will mean that the police department will have to call upon the "specials" for duty the night of April 15, as there are not enough regulars to care for the regular patrol duty and also look after the polling places.

May 3 has been fixed as the date for holding the next chauffeur's examination in Kingston at the city hall. The examination will be held at 9 o'clock in the morning, as usual.

The iron cops have been thoroughly overhauled and repainted and when traffic becomes heavy will resume duty at the various street corners.

PORT EWEN.

A Dog and Cat Fight.

Pedestrians on Broadway, near St. James street, were treated to an amusing sight about 8 o'clock Wednesday night when a cat hardly larger than a kitten came out the victor in a scrap with a big dog. The dog started the hostilities. The cat did not run. It used its claws with telling effect. The dog beat a retreat, then came back and tried it again, with the same result. A little later the dog gave up the fight in disgust and walked away, a wiser and sadder canine.

VICTORY MENUS.

These menus, planned to conserve time, labor and money, to save the foods that are scarce and use those of which there is an abundance, are Victory Menus in more senses than one. They are prepared by the Department of Home Economics of the State College of Agriculture and endorsed by the New York State Food Commission.

Friday.

Breakfast—Sliced bananas, rice with top milk, *toasted cornmeal gems, coffee.

Lunch or supper—Baked cheese, sautéed potatoes, *tomato relish, victory bread, *jam.

Dinner—Broiled mackerel, baked potatoes, *Harvard beets, Indian pudding with raisins and whipped cream.

Milk for the children to drink at each meal.

*May be omitted and still leave a balanced meal.

Fat is a vital food. Because it is a high energy producing or fuel food, soldiers and working people especially need much fat. Certain fats contain substances that are believed to be essential for growth and for life itself. The most important of these are milk fat, egg yolk fat, cod liver oil and beef fat. There is a great shortage of fat in the world. The allies are especially asking for this food. Most Americans are eating more fat than they need. They should reduce the amount of this food which they are consuming daily. Many housewives are throwing fat into the garbage pail. Every bit of fat, no matter how small, should be put to use.

Baked Cheese.

One cup bread crumbs, 1 pint milk, 2 eggs, 1/2 teaspoon salt, paprika, 3 tablespoons melted butter, 1/4 pound grated cheese (1 cup).

Mix the butter with the crumbs, add the salt and paprika, the cheese and the eggs beaten and mixed with the milk. Turn the mixture into buttered scalloped shells or cups and bake until the egg is set. Serve at once in the dishes.

Harvard Beets.

Wash 12 small beets, cook in boiling water until soft; remove the skins and cut the beets in thin slices or dice. Canned beets may be used. Mix 1/2 cup or corn syrup and 1/2 tablespoon cornstarch; add 1/2 cup of diluted vinegar and boil five minutes. Pour over the beets and let them stand on the back of the stove one-half hour. Just before serving add 2 tablespoons of butter.

Recipes for any of the dishes in these menus which cannot be found in cook books may be had by writing to the Department of Home Economics, State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y.

ROCK HILL.

Rock Hill, April 11.—Mr. and Mrs. George Davis spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. Laura Coddington and family.

TURNING THE LIGHT OF TRUTH ON PROHIBITION

Prohibition advocates claim that the use of alcoholic beverages is the chief cause of poverty, crime, disease and insanity and that the great loss in revenue now derived from excise taxes would be offset by the savings in public expenditures for charities, prisons and insane asylums.

Prohibition advocates DO NOT tell you that of all cases of poverty relieved by public agencies in this state during 1916 (the latest report available) only 6 per cent were attributed to liquor.

That the report of the Secretary of State on Statistics of Crime shows that of all convictions for criminal offenses less than 8 per cent of the offenders were intemperate.

That the New York State Hospital Commission reports that of all admissions to hospitals for the insane during the year 1916, only 10 per cent of the cases were ascribed to the use of liquor and many eminent physicians hold that, in these cases, the use of liquor was not the cause of insanity but that it was caused by an already weak or defective mind.

Prohibition advocates do not tell you that the alleged saving of public expenses would be less than 10 per cent, leaving 90 per cent to be raised by taxes on real estate, business and industry.

WHY

If Prohibition diminishes crime,

WHY has Kansas 91.1 sentenced prisoners per 100,000 population, while wet Nebraska has only 55.1 per 100,000?

If Prohibition decreases insanity,

WHY has insanity increased 83 per cent in dry Maine and 94 per cent in dry Kansas from 1890 to 1910 under prohibition?

If Prohibition abolishes poverty,

WHY has dry Maine 127.3 paupers per 100,000 population while wet Minnesota has only 46.2 per 100,000?

If Prohibition prevents murders,

WHY did dry Memphis, Tenn., have 72.2 murders per 100,000 population, while wet Milwaukee, Wis., has only 2.8 per 100,000?

If Prohibition promotes prosperity,

WHY are wages higher in wet Rhode Island and Pennsylvania than in dry Maine and North Dakota?

If Prohibition diminishes drunkenness,

WHY was the average number of arrests for "drunkenness and disturbance" in Portland, Maine, during the past five years, much higher than in wet Cincinnati?

If Prohibition lessens disease,

WHY has dry Maine a death rate of 15.3 per 100,000 population, while in wet Wisconsin the rate is only 11.5 per 100,000?

At BONE-DRY Seattle, General A. H. Green, the commanding officer, has issued an order forbidding his officers and men to visit that city because of the vice conditions existing there. In a letter to the Mayor, he says:

"Your city is filled with parlor houses where prostitution, liquor and drugs are freely obtainable. Your rooming houses and hotels, including some high class ones, are infested by women of the underworld."

The only way to escape the conditions which exist in Seattle is to vote "Yes" on all four questions April 16th.

BOY SCOUT SERVICE FLAG

On Wednesday there was flung to the breeze at the Boy Scout Headquarters, this city, a service flag (the gift of Charles A. Warren) in honor of four Kingston Boy Scouts: Jerry Yeaple, U. S. S. Huntington, care postmaster, New York city; Private W. H. Astle, Medical Staff, K Field Artillery, enlisted May 24th, 1917; Martin E. Dipon, Co. D, 9th Machine Gun Battalion, 3rd Division, Camp Greene, Charlotte, N. C.; Lester Edson Decker, U. S. Naval Reserve Radio School, Pelham Bay Park, N. Y., Assistant Scout Master, Troop 6.

While the Boy Scout movement in America has absolutely disclaimed any right or title to being a military organization, this war is showing that the training which the boys receive as scouts is doing much to make them especially efficient and open to promotion.

A letter received in this city from Private Astle told how the first aid work which he had as Boy Scout had aided him in his war service. All of the boys agree that the camp life of the Boy Scouts is of invaluable service in preparing them for army camp life. In another instance a lad of nineteen who enlisted, because of the signalling work which he did as a scout, was made an officer in an incredibly short time. The Boy Scout of today, is therefore receiving, not only the sort of training which any normal boy loves, but he is being made a better citizen and is being prepared for possible service to his country should the war last until he is called, which in case of the older boys will, it is to be feared, seem possible.

"BIRTH OF A NATION."

Great Moving Picture Drama Coming to the Orpheum.

In response to numerous and urgent requests, D. W. Griffith's, "The Birth of a Nation," which scored the greatest triumph a theatrical attraction has ever achieved, has been booked at the Orpheum Theatre for Monday next, April 15, one day only, at popular prices. David W. Griffith, whose fame has now girdled the globe, chose for the theme of his great spectacle the turmoil and travail of over fifty years ago, out of which a new and united nation was born. A southern himself, the son of General "Thunder Jake" Griffith of the Confederate Army, Griffith knows the heart of the south. Through his wonderful pictorial story of what the south suffered he has brought out the brotherhood of the north and has done more to cement the friendship of the two sections than all the books that have been written. Editorials in northern newspapers say that he has forever wiped out Mason and Dixon's line.

Miss Elizabeth Becker of Mme. Grays Shop, New York city, will be at the Stuyvesant Friday and Saturday of this week, April 12 and 13. The newest Spring creations will be shown, including evening and afternoon dresses, serge dresses, wraps, etc. Miss Becker was formerly with G. A. Hart and Company, and for several years' past with Mme. Irens of Fifth Avenue.—Adv.

Queer Post Office Names.

Strange names have often been given to post offices in the United States. The latest list shows a place called Ace, in Missouri; an Affinity in West Virginia, a Barefoot in Georgia, a Blightfoot in Texas, a Blowout in Idaho, a Braggadoole in Missouri, a Chuckle in North Carolina, a Difficulty in Wyoming, and a Mud in Texas. The post office doesn't care, of course, so long as the name is written legibly and the county and state are given.

Making Our Own Indigo.

Indigo is now being made from coal tar in this country. At Midland, Mich., 1,000 pounds of 20 per cent paste are produced daily. All the tariff bills of this nation, commencing with the tariff of March 3, 1883, and including the tariff of October 3, 1913, placed Indigo on the free list. Not until September 5, 1916, was a bill passed putting a duty on it. It was the first schedule that braved the anger of the German dye makers.—Popular Science Monthly.

OAKES MAN WINS A $500 VERDICT

A supreme court jury Tuesday awarded William J. Manning, of Oakes, Ulster county, a verdict of $500 in his action brought against the city of Poughkeepsie. Charles L. McCann, with James E. Carroll, of counsel, represented the plaintiff, while the action was defended by Corporation Counsel Worrall, with Robert Wilkinson, of counsel. The action was tried before Justice J. Addison Young.

The action was the result of an accident which occurred on the sidewalk in front of 52 Main street on June 21, 1917. Manning claimed that while walking along on the sidewalk he stepped on an iron corner and the same gave way, throwing him to the walk, with the result that his sight was impaired and he suffered internal injuries. The action was brought to recover damages to the extent of $10,000.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT.

"BONE DRY! BONE DRY!"

This favorite scare phrase of the "wets" is again being worked overtime by the liquor interests in a futile attempt to influence a comparatively small percentage of city voters who in times past have been known to take an occasional drink or perhaps to have an occasional case of beer delivered at their homes. "If the city goes dry," they are saying in advertisements in many of the city papers, "you cannot have liquor of any kind in your possession." Their insistence upon this terrifying prospect will recall to most readers of these advertisements an interesting bit of recent history which it would seem the "wets" would prefer not to revive.

The so-called "bone-dry" provision in the city option law was written into the measure by the "wet" leaders in the legislature of last year shortly before its enactment, for the transparent purpose of making local option unpopular and no-license obnoxious as a means of stemming the growing tide of public sentiment against the liquor traffic and toward state-wide prohibition. The same provision was written into the liquor tax law with reference to local option elections in the townships of the state and the same "wet" legislators were responsible for changing the percentage of excise revenue going to municipalities from fifty to seventy-five per cent.

The passage of these amendments was hailed with high glee by the "wets," and they then set back to watch results. The first test, however, in the town local option elections of last fall, gave them a bad jolt and quite upset their calculations, for 114 towns, totally disregarding the cry of "bone-dry" and the additional revenue bait, gave big majorities for no-license, while only nine changed from "dry" to "wet," thus making a net gain of 105 "dry" towns at a single election.

In their zeal to make the law offensive the "wets" have even intimidated, and frequently declared publicly, that voting a city "dry" would prevent the use of wine in sacramental or other religious services. Courts throughout the United States have repeatedly ruled the use of wine for such purposes is a recognized act of religious worship and is therefore constitutionally exempt from the provisions of a general prohibition law, even if not specifically exempted by the act itself. But to make the law on this point absolutely clear and specific the following amendment to the Hill-Wheeler city option law was adopted at the special session of the New York Legislature last August, becoming effective on August 29, 1917:

"The provisions of this subdivision shall not be deemed to prohibit, in any such town or city, the possession of wine for sacramental purposes, nor the possession by a duly licensed pharmacist of alcohol to be used as a preservative or solvent in the manufacture and compounding of drugs and medicines, nor the possession of alcohol necessary for any manufacturing process, nor to prohibit the delivery of such liquors in such town or city for such purposes or acceptance for such delivery."

This ought to be plain enough for any honest man of ordinary intelligence to understand but a bill has been introduced in the present legislature still further amplifying this provision and making it so clear that "a wayfaring man, though a fool, may not err therein."

The "bone-dry" proposition far from being a blow to the no-license forces, has actually been a boomerang to the "wets." The dry advocates in the towns are well pleased with the supposedly hostile move, for, they say, "now when we vote our town dry we know it will be dry in fact as well as in name." The same thing will hold true in the cities. If, as the "wets" predicted when the law was passed, the law will "smoke out the hypocrites," the voter who will put his own personal appetite above the welfare of his community—who will vote "wet" simply in order that he may have his booze—will set a price for himself which looks like about thirty cents. Even the most violent objector to "bone-dryness" will be compelled to recognize that he has only the "wets" to blame for making it possible, and even probable, that the voters of half the New York State cities will make a clean sweep of booze at their respective city elections on April 16.

It was justly said by Emperor Charles V. to learn a new language was to acquire a new soul. He who is acquainted only with the writers of his native tongue is in perpetual danger of confounding what is accidental with what is essential, and of supposing that tastes and habits of thought, which belong only to his own age and country, are inseparable from the nature of man.—Macaulay.

Oath Purposely Made Stringent.

The term "iron-clad oath" has no significance now. It was then given to a very stringent oath of office prescribed by congress in 1862 and applied at the close of the Civil war for officeholders in the re-constructed states. It was intended to exclude from office all who had participated in the Civil war on the Confederate side, and really had that effect because they could not take the oath.

REDISTRICTING OF CITY A BIG JOB

City Fathers Held an Informal Session in Matter Wednesday—May be 28 Election Districts—Must be Done Soon.

At the close of the public hearing of the charter amendment as related in another column the city fathers Wednesday evening held an informal meeting and discussed the redistricting of the city's election districts for the November election. The city must be redistricted before July 1, for the next general election in November, and will probably come up for action at the June meeting of the city fathers.

Under tentative plans that have been discussed there will be at least twenty-eight voting districts under the redistricting plan instead of thirteen as at present. This will mean an additional 120 election officers to care for the new districts.

One important factor that must be considered in dividing up the present election districts is the problem of securing additional places in which to hold the election. In some of the wards there will be no trouble experienced in securing additional polling places, but in other wards it will present a problem.

In redistricting the wards the aldermen must also take into consideration the number of voters in each ward. The recent police census is expected to be of great assistance in the matter as it will give the number of voters residing in each block. In redistricting the city an effort will be made to balance up the vote so that each district will have about the same number of voters to handle on election day.

The informal discussion Wednesday was to get the aldermen busy on the proposition so that when the matter comes up at the June meeting the work of redistricting the city will be accomplished at that time.

THE TASTY RHUBARBS.

Rhubarb is a most valuable spring tonic, being filled with oxalic acid which contains purgative properties, which are particularly good for a sluggish liver.

Rhubarb Pudding.—Place slices of buttered bread in a baking dish, heap over them finely cut rhubarb, with sugar, a little water and a dash of nutmeg; bake until the rhubarb has soaked the bread. Serve from the baking dish.

Rhubarb Custard Pie.—Add to two well beaten eggs two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch mixed with a cupful of milk, a half cupful of sugar and a cupful of cooked sweetened rhubarb. Pour this mixture into a pastry-lined plate and bake. Cover with a meringue if so desired, or serve with whipped cream well sweetened.

Rhubarb Whip.—When eggs are more plentiful, try this: Beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, add three tablespoonfuls of powdered sugar and a teaspoonful of lemon juice, then a pint of stewed rhubarb. Sprinkle the top with nuts when serving.

Rhubarb and Raisin Pie.—Add equal amounts of raisins and chopped rhubarb to the crust, as usual. For children, this may be cooked as sauce, making a most tasty one.

Rhubarb Bread Pudding.—Pour boiling water over a pint of stale bread crumbs and let stand until soft, then drain and add one beaten egg, one tablespoonful of sugar, a grating of nutmeg. Have ready buttered cups, and put into each a half tablespoonful of cooked rhubarb, well sweetened, and put it over the crumb mixture, and bake. Cake crumbs or slices of stale sponge cake may be used and served with whipped cream.

Rhubarb Sago Pudding.—Sago or tapioca for this. Soak a cupful of sago in a quart of water, add a teaspoonful of salt. Thin with hot water until like heavy cream, then pour over a dish of cut rhubarb sweetened to taste, and bake one hour. Serve with whipped cream.

Porkers Cut Down Dairy Output. Ernest E. Gourley, a dairyman of Portland, Ore., became discouraged because his cows gave such a small quantity of milk. Then he became suspicious and established a close watch over his bovines. He also owned several pigs which were becoming fat very rapidly. Presto! The pigs were helping themselves to the milk. Now the pigs are separated from the cows and the dairy business has picked up.

His Trouble.

"You are looking miserable, Subbs. Why don't you ask a doctor what ails you?"

"I know what ails me—quick consumption."

"You don't mean it?"

"I do. I have to bolt my breakfast in two gulps to catch the train, and my lunch in two more to get back to the office."—Boston Transcript.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE
BY MARY GRAHAM BONNERTHE MUSK-OX.

"I will not be imposed upon," said the white-fronted Musk-Ox.

And to prove that he meant it he would not have anything to do with the animals any younger than himself. "They are so young," he said, "they don't know enough to suit me."

"Are you so fond of knowledge?" asked his brother, Miller Musk-Ox.

"I don't like young and silly animals about me," said Mr. Musk-Ox. "And I don't intend to put up with it, I don't."

So Mr. Musk-Ox was quite the ruler in his parts. His home was in the northern part of Canada, where the land was very barren and desolate and wild.

It was not long before Mr. Musk-Ox saw a creature he liked very much indeed, and that was Miss Musk-Ox.

He didn't think she was young, nor foolish. He thought she was quite perfect. When he went to see her he did not boast about his great strength and how he wanted to rule the land about. He was a different kind of musk-ox. And brother Miller Musk-Ox watched and was very much amused.

Miss Musk-Ox was certainly very handsome. Her hair covered her whole body, which was quite big, though she was not nearly so large as Mr. Musk-Ox.

"Your hair is lovely," Mr. Musk-Ox said.

And Miss Musk-Ox tried to blush, for she thought that was the right thing to do, but she was so brown and so woolly that she couldn't, somehow, get the color to show, though she felt as if she must be blushing.

"Yes," continued Mr. Musk-Ox, "you have the most wonderful brown hair I have ever seen. It's much lighter than mine—it's so much softer and it's so very thick."

"You have beautiful hair, Miss Musk-Ox. In fact, beautiful doesn't half express it. I can't find the words to tell you what I think of your hair. Ah, such a color, so soft! So thick."

"And you are so sensible, too; you have some good straight hair over that which is your umbrella. I'm glad to see you have your own umbrella. It would be hard for me to provide you with one, for I could never cover up your masses of hair. And your umbrella is the finest ever a musk-ox had."

Miss Musk-Ox turned her big eyes upon Mr. Musk-Ox and smiled, a nice oxlike smile, which Mr. Musk-Ox thought very wonderful.

The Musk-Ox family have straight, long hair which is quite thick over their beautiful soft woolly hair, and it sheds the rain from them in the storms. Otherwise they would become soaking wet, for their own hair is so heavy it would catch and hold all the rain.

"I'm glad you like my umbrella," said Miss Musk-Ox.

"Yes," said Mr. Musk-Ox, "and it's the only thing I can't offer you for mine would do you no good. It's a big relief to feel you have one of your own. And as I have said before, it's the very best umbrella I've ever seen."

Then Mr. Musk-Ox moved a little and under one foot he showed what he had been hiding all this time, a bunch of hay for Miss Musk-Ox. He had been standing in the same position all the time he had been talking.

"This is for you, Miss Musk-Ox," he said, and his face looked quite silly, though Miss Musk-Ox thought it was very handsome.

"And it means," he continued, "that I want to look after you always. To get your food and to be your dear musk-ox companion. Will you, will you?" he stammered, "become Mrs. Musk-Ox?"

Miss Musk-Ox was all a tremble. Her long brown hair shook, for she was so nervous with excitement. But how happy and proud she was!

"You're just about my age, aren't you?" asked Mr. Musk-Ox. "You're not young and foolish, I know."

"I'm just your age," Miss Musk-Ox answered.

"I thought so," said Mr. Musk-Ox delightedly. "And will you do me the honor to become Mrs. Musk-Ox?" he asked again.

"I will be honored myself," said Miss Musk-Ox. "It will make me very happy." And brother Miller Musk-Ox grinned as he saw them walking off together, and heard Mr. Musk-Ox say that he wanted the new Mrs. Musk-Ox to do all the managing and bossing in the Musk-Ox family!

CANTEEN WOMAN TELLS OF WORK IN FRANCE

Tells How Workers Meet Poilus With Boilers Filled With Coffee.

The following is an excerpt from a letter of an American Red Cross canteen worker in France, describing the work of the canteen women and the experiences which enliven the daily routine of their lives:

"We meet the trains at the station—they have only a short stop—with great boilers full of hot coffee, and on these cold winter nights you don't know how grateful the Poilus hold out their battered tin cups to have them filled.

"The canteen itself is very pleasant, with brightly colored walls, a beautiful painting by a former judge of the Salon, who has a country home near by, a son who is a prisoner in Germany and a charming daughter who is one of the helpers at the canteen. He has donated a large seascape and wants the Red Cross to take it back to America after the war.

Good Food Served.

"Then we have a photograph which is an endless source of pleasure to the men, and soon when our new recreation room is in order we shall hire a piano. We serve good food at a much lower price than they can get at the railroad restaurants, and, as the Poilus receive 5 cents a day, it means a lot to them.

"The bread ration is very strict at present, and it is hard to have to refuse more than one son of bread to each man when he looks up in a hungry fashion and says: 'But how can I eat this cheese without a little more bread?' The one expression that seems to cover everything over here is 'est la guerre,' but sometimes you see it brings very little comfort.

"The suffering in the world comes home so to one here. Why, just the other night when I was on duty at the canteen, which is at the station, a poor soldier had both legs run over and torn off by a train. We tried to do what we could to help the doctor who just happened to be changing trains. Our Red Cross car took the man off to a hospital. I shall never forget how, while I was holding his hand trying to comfort him, he repeated over and over, 'Mes trois pauvres enfants' (my three poor children)."

Another Use for Cement.

Through the shortage of structural steel, roof trusses of timber incased in cement have been used for buildings of a Texas oil refinery. After putting in place, the trusses were wrapped with a layer of light waterproof building paper, and sheets of expanded metal, with half-inch diamond mesh, were fitted around the paper, and held five-eighths inch from the surface by chairs and nails. A coating of one and a half inches of cement mortar was then applied with cement bricks. The roof was covered with a one and a half-inch monolithic slab, built in place by the use of wire-mesh re-enforcing, and cement mortar applied by cement guns from below against wood panels, which were removed after 24 hours. The cement surface was given a final coating of hot asphalt paint.

Hospital Unit Complete.

Base hospital unit No. 13, composed of students, alumni and former students of the University of Chicago, as well as doctors and nurses from the Presbyterian hospital of Chicago, and enlisted men from the universities of Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Beloit college and Northwestern university, is now in the South. Of this unit the personnel is complete, and as it now stands it has 152 enlisted men, 100 field nurses, 26 doctors and six civilian secretaries.

Little Time for Romance.

"Tell me some of the things you do on shipboard," said the impressionable young woman. "Well, ma'am," replied the matter-of-fact bar, "we scrub decks, we polish brass, we load coal and—"

"Dear me! You don't get much romance out of that kind of work, do you?" "No'm; what we gets out of it is mostly our pay and our keep."

"Ki" in the Navy.

Navy cocoa, which Princess Mary thought might be good to eat as chocolate, is known aboard ship as ki. It is served out on the first deck watch every Thursday, and it is drunk whenever circumstances (in other words, the ship's "crusher," or polioeman permit, The men grate down a liberal quantity of it (for ki is less concentrated than shore cocoa) and drink it mixed in busins with sugar and condensed milk. At sea a special cull-dron or ki, prepared by the ship's cook, is sent round action stations in "fan-fies," or large pitchers. Midnight for the guns' crews of our fleet is the hour when the ki boat arrives.—London Chronicle.

Curse of Misgovernment.

To be governed by small men is not only a misfortune, but it is a curse and a sin, and alas the cause also of all manner of curses and sins.—Carlyle.

Morano said he got up about five o'clock, and had been up before that—about four o'clock—when it was dark and he went back to bed because it was "too early" for him. He did not notice whether it was too dark or not.

On the hearing before the justice of the peace, Morano stated that when he got up at four o'clock he "looked out of the window" and saw it was too dark.

He first saw Dominick that morning when he came back after being up on the hill and seen Joe's body; Dominick was mixed up in his time.

Morano's Contradictions.

Mr. Loughran read from Morano's testimony before the justice of the peace. Morano testified that Dominick was up "as I was ready to go up on the hill." Dominick had made coffee before witness went up on the hill.

Morano said perhaps he was mixed up—he could not remember "all that."

He went to bed between 8:30 and 9 o'clock the night before, said Morano. On the hearing before Justice of the Peace Alexander Johnston he testified that Dominick came home at eight o'clock and "went right to bed," and "I was in bed when he came home."

"Maybe I did say that," said Morano. "I cannot remember all those things. Maybe I was in bed and got up."

Morano said his son, Arthur, was home when Dominick came home. On the justice's hearing he testified Arthur was in the house then.

Mixed Concrete at 5 A. M.

No building has been erected on the foundation yet. Work on the foundation was begun last September; labor was hard to get. When he first went on the hill that morning he started to mix cement; he looked over toward the trees and saw and heard him both at the same time. He was 25 or 30 feet away.

Q—"Did you see blood that morning?"

A—"Blood all over him; on strawberry plants, on track."

When he went back to the house he stood outside the bed room door and told his wife, talking ten or fifteen minutes while he stood outside the door. He went to the doctor's alone. Some fertilizer bags were placed under Joe's head.

On the justice's hearing, Morano testified he looked over the ground where "they" dragged him.

Q—"Who did you mean by 'they'?"

A—"I don't understand that."

Malone always wore a gray suit when on the farm; never a brown suit. He thought perhaps he saw him wear a brown suit once.

On his dining room table he kept a small clock, which he looked at. On the justice's hearing he testified he did not have any clock.

On the justice's hearing he testified that he heard an automobile and that waked him—he was asleep.

Morano said he could not remember the people made a mistake with pen and ink.

On the justice's hearing he testified he heard "automobiles" going along the road and "think they come in, but they go right on."

On the justice's hearing, Morano testified that "when the people came, we looked around for this stone business."

Q—"Your notion was that a stone was used to crush Joe Michael's skull. Did you mention this hammer then?"

A. I don't remember.

Q. The record is silent. Why didn't you mention it?

A. I don't remember.

Morano remembered having told Mr. Loughran last November that he found Joe's cap inside a barrel that there was a clot of blood on the inside and it looked as if a man had wiped his hands on it.

Q. Did you tell me that?

A. Well, what's the difference? I don't remember all.

Sent for Priest After Man Was Dead.

Father Handley, said Morano, found the cap; he had sent for Father Handley, who told him he had been away when the boy got to his house, but he came as soon as he could.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, didn't Father Handley ask you why you sent for him after the man was dead?

A. I think he did.

Q. And didn't you say that Joe had some life insurance and you wanted to give him a good funeral?

A. "I don't remember."

Q. "Didn't you stand up in Justice Johnston's court and say you had a violent temper and might kill somebody you got mad, and didn't Justice Johnston tell you to sit down and nobody was afraid of you?"

A. "No? I don't remember anything like that."

Re-direct examination:

At the hearing before Justice Johnston, he did not mention the hammer because he was not asked. He did not threaten to kill anybody at that hearing.

Mr. Loughran's memory was uncertain regarding the clock or watch on the table. Regarding automobiles going by, he meant that they went by often at night; not that night.

Newman Remembered.

William H. Newman, re-called, testified that when he saw Malone walking down the road, he had testified Wednesday afternoon he did not recall seeing a value in his hand. Since then he had recollected that he testified before the grand jury and before the magistrate that Malone did have a value in his hand.

No cross-examination.

Lewis Lyons testified he had seen Malone and Joe in Hewitt's hotel the night of September 27. Joe and another man went out just ahead of witness and went up Western avenue behind them. In the hotel he heard Joe say, "You steal my horse and go to jail." Malone replied, "You go back and work for that Wap for a dollar a day."

Cross-examination:

At the justice's hearing, did not remember justifying "they all went out in a heap."

Re-direct examination:

Testified that the three went out ahead of me.

Military Census Card Found in Suit.

Elsie Banker testified that when the state military census was taken last summer she visited Morano's fruit farm and took Joe's answers to questions. He was of military age and she served a notice on him. Mr. Traver took this paper from the inside pocket of the blue suit and Miss Banker identified it.

Mr. Traver offered the paper in evidence for the purpose, he said, to identify the coat as the coat belonging to Joe Michael.

No cross-examination.

When Joe Bought His Suit.

Arthur Morano, 16 years old, son of Vincent Morano, testified he was in the village on the night of September 26 and got home about 8:30 or 10 o'clock and went to bed. He never saw Malone wearing a blue hat, but had such a hat when brought back to Marlborough after his arrest. Arthur was in bed when he heard of Joe being hurt; he got up and went up on the hill; went to Joe's shanty to get a sheet to cover him. When he came out of the shanty he noticed the dead man's vest on the path—blue cloth with green check stripes; he had often seen him wear it. Joe bought the suit on December 31, 1916 on Bleeker street, New York City; Arthur and his mother were there. At the same time Joe had bought a pair of shoes and soft hat; the hat was bought at another store on Bleeker street. Arthur identified the brown hat as that of Joe bought.

Arthur left the vest in the path and told his father and mother about it. Joe had a Leonard gun metal watch, said the boy; with a watch face containing a flag. He identified the watch.

Witness said the strawberry bushes were bent toward the south.

Cross-examination.

Vincent Morano, the boy's father, makes wine and has a wine selling place at 82 Macdougall street, New York City.

Stone Wet With Blood at 10:30 A. M.

Coroner George Sutter testified he heard about Michael's death at 7:30 a. m., and went to the village to inquire around. At the depot he asked the man had bought a ticket for Newburgh, and immediately telegraphed word to Weehawken. Later he received word from Weehawken that no such man was on the train, whereupon he notified the Newburgh police.

On the Morano lane he found blood spots and put his hand near it; found it was wet. He examined Joe's body, went through his clothes and found a red handkerchief. In an empty barrel which was tipped over, he found a cap, which he identified. The spot of wet blood was on the edge of the drive and thirty feet from the body. Later Coroner Sutter visited Joe's shanty, near which he found a green and blue vest, which he identified. He also found a light blue hat in the shanty.

Cross-examination.

Saw a small hammer in the shanty; saw a small stone with some blood on it. On a ladder was a blood stain—somewhat in the shape of a hand.

Re-direct examination:

The stone with blood on it was about twenty inches from the spot of blood.

The stone was produced by Mr. Traver and identified.

Re-cross examination:

"The stone was wet when I picked it up; the blood and dust came off on my hand." This was at 10:30 o'clock.

Court took a recess until two o'clock this afternoon.

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

Owing to the shortness of time for advertising and selling tickets, the senior class has decided to postpone the dance Friday night, April 12, to Friday night, April 26. Please do not allow this postponement to dampen your interest in the dance. The proceeds are still for the benefit of the Red Cross and otherwise things are just as they were told in Tuesday night's Freeman. The annual of the high school and of the two old academies are invited and asked to help support this cause.

The prospect of the junior class having former Ambassador to Germany Gerard to lecture in Kingston either the latter part of this month or the first part of next, are very good. The proceeds of the lecture will be for the benefit of the Red Cross.

Wednesday afternoon immediately after school a mass meeting of the girls was held at which Miss Woolsey, Miss Olga Owens and Miss Emily Crosby spoke concerning the duty of the high school girls in connection with Red Cross work. It is hoped the meeting will result in the high school girls turning out a greater amount of surgical dressings in the near future. The girls who can and will not do this work after yesterday's meeting most surely lack that spirit of true Americanism and patriotism that ought to be found in every human being in the United States.

DENY DEAD HORSE CHARGE.

Bach & Shapiro Refute Mr. Alcon's Charges in Great Detail.

Mr. Alcon's statements as published in The Freeman of April 10th are false and we emphatically deny same. We use the yard for spreading and drying bedding, not for dead horses as Mr. Alcon alleges. We have box stalls in which we treat our sick horses and if it so happens that they die it is in the box stall and are always taken away by Mr. Fischang within the hour. The dead horse can only be seen by persons passing through our stable and see them in the box stall and we, the firm, will forfeit $100.00 to Mr. Alcon or any person that can prove we had a dead horse lying in the backyard. As for water running from our yard into his cellar is also false. His leader pipe leading from his roof comes out about half way between his house and the gutter. The fall of the side walk is toward his house and all water coming through the leaders flows back into Mr. Alcon's cellar. This water as we state above, discharges all the water from the roof and when it rains it is impossible for any person to pass under it without getting drenched. We would ask the city authorities to look into this matter.

(Signed) BASCH & SHAPIRO.

NOMBACUS HEIGHTS.

Nombacus Heights, April 11.—Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Smith and son, Howard, Mrs. Harry Smith, Rev. A. Quick and wife and Thomas Morehouse attended the funeral of Benjamin Morehouse at Patankunk last Wednesday, the Rev. A. Quick officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Etten anted from Bloomington and spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Van Etten, and called on their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Depuy.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith and little daughter anted to Kerhonkson on Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hartelius entertained auto visitors from out of town on Sunday.

Richard Churchill of Leibhardt was a caller in this place Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Gray, Jr., of Palentown, took his sister, Miss Vaud, who was also due at Minnewaska, and Miss Ethel Hartelius to their destination by auto on Monday morning.

It is rumored that Arthur Smith, son of Abram Smith of this place, has been married recently to a young lady in Walden, where he is employed.

Harold Van Etten was a guest for supper at the home of his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. Depuy, and accompanied them to spend the evening with the Hartelius family.

Refreshments of ice cream, cake and coffee will be on sale after the entertainment on Saturday evening next.

A merry crowd, seventeen in number, gave Ambrose Van Etten a surprise party on Friday evening. It also answered the double purpose of a farewell party for Miss Ethel Hartelius, who left for Minnewaska on Monday, a birthday celebration for one of the gentlemen guests. Every one was in a merry-making mood and an extraordinary good time was the result. The supper was abundant and unsurpassed. This is the second time Mr. Van Etten has been honored which speaks well for his hospitality and his invitation to "come again" will no doubt be accepted some future time. This makes the full dozen that has been held in this neighborhood since last fall. Who will dare to have superstition and make it thirteen?

Howard and Elroy Smith, Miss Ethel Hartelius and brothers, George and Clifford, enjoyed an auto trip to the Ashokan dam Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith and children spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Green and family.

A party of young people from this place enjoyed a hike to the Woodence place at Brownville on Sunday.

MALONE CASE SHOWS VARIETY OF FACTS

Malone Borrowed Five Dollars Which He Used in Buying Drinks in Newburgh Where He Told Witnesses That "Morano" Had Been Killed.

The trial of Thomas Malone on a charge of murder in the second degree proceeded rapidly before Judge Jenkins and a jury in county court Wednesday afternoon when a number of witnesses were examined by District Attorney Traver for the People and cross-examined by John T. Loughran, counsel for Malone.

The afternoon's testimony was to the effect that Malone arrived at the shanty where he had lived up to the time of his arrest in August, at two o'clock in the morning after his release from the Kingston jail when the grand jury had failed to indict him for horse stealing; borrowed five dollars from his former employer, Edward McCarthy, the following morning; bought a ticket to Newburgh and checked a brown valise to that place; traded his dark hat for a blue hat; drank considerably; telling a bartender and another man that "Morano" had been killed at Marlborough; and when arrested told the police his name was Smith.

A chemist testified that spots on the suit worn when arrested contained evidence of blood, having the same characteristics as human blood. Cross-examination brought out the fact that the part of Michael's brain which was injured is a seat of respiration; that the chemist who examined the spots on the clothing worn by Malone would not say that the blood was human blood and that the Newburgh policeman who arrested Malone coupled with Malone's request not to handcuff him because he had only one hand and several fingers were missing from the other hand.

Dr. Henry Van Hovenberg was recalled by the People and testified that persons injured as Michael was sometimes live for considerable time after the injury; Michael could have lived from eleven o'clock in the evening until seven o'clock the following morning.

Seat of Respiration Injured.

Cross-examination: The part of Michael's brain which was injured is an important part of the brain. It is the seat of respiration. The doctor would not consider it unusual for him to live from 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. with that kind of injury. There was no evidence of Michael having bled from his nose or ears; it is usual for persons to bleed from nose and ears when the fracture is at the base of the brain; this fracture was not the base.

2 a. m. When Malone Came Home.

John Moore testified that he lived at Edward McCarthy's farm, about two miles from Marlborough village and was employed by McCarthy last September. Moore is not over intelligent. He said Malone was also employed there last summer and both lived in two shanties close together, the doors being about six feet apart. Malone ceased living there "some time before the apples were ripe." He was away two or three weeks. When he came back it was early in the morning and he came in and wanted the key of his shanty. Just after he gave Malone the key and turned around to the bed, the clock struck two.

Later about 6 o'clock Moore heard someone walking around in the shanty who then went out. About twenty minutes later somebody came back to the shanty and went out again. He did not see anyone either time. Moore arose after 7 o'clock while working there. Mr. McCarthy told him there had been a murder and asked about Malone. Later McCarthy and a man whom he identified as Assistant District Attorney Hasbrouck came and asked questions. Malone, said Moore, had worked for McCarthy since he knew him. He had seen him once selling shoe strings. He knew Malone had a valise but did not know its color.

No cross-examination.

Borrowed $5 From McCarthy.

Edward McCarthy testified that his fruit farm was two miles west of Marlborough and last summer he had employed Moore and Malone. White Malone worked there he lived in a shanty close to that occupied by Moore, the doors being five or six feet apart and opposite each other. In August Malone stopped working for him and began peddling produce for Morano, with Morano's rig, but continued to live at the shack. On the morning of September 27, Malone came to the house about 6:30 o'clock and McCarthy expressed surprise at his being back from Kingston and asked him how he got out of jail. Malone replied that nobody had appeared against him. Malone wanted to borrow five dollars to go to New York and McCarthy gave him the money, offering also to give him a cup of coffee, but Malone said he did not have time to wait. He started down the arbor toward the barn.

whether such stains were human blood.

Objection overruled.

A—They had the same characteristics as human blood; it is impossible to say they were human blood.

Wouldn't Say It Was Human Blood.

Cross-examination:

Dr. Deguehee described in detail the process he had followed in making his chemical tests. A solution was made and chemicals added; the mixture was heated over a slow flame until it began to boil and was allowed to cool. A test with brownish red crystals formed—a test which only blood responds. This is known as the Heilmann test.

Mr. Loughran read a statement from a scientific text book that "According to Belchert, exactly the same results are obtained from indigo," and asked Dr. Deguehee if that was true.

The doctor said he disagreed with the statement as to results, and disagreed with other experts, basing his opinion on what he had read but not on personal experience. He would not say that these were human blood stains but only that they had the character of blood. He had also soaked some of the stains with a salt solution which brings blood corpuscles back to their original shape and had then examined them under the microscope. He expected to charge about $50 for his services.

Traded Brown Hat For Blue.

Albert Schatzel testified he now lives at the Poughkeepsie State Hospital, last September he was employed by the Central-Hudson Steamboat Company. On September 27 he saw Malone between 10:30 and 11 o'clock at the New York Hotel, 102 Broadway, Newburgh. Malone came in and asked witness to have a drink. Witness asked him where his shoe strings were. Malone said he did not have any. Malone asked the fellow who cleaned up the hotel if he had any kind of a cap. Malone was wearing a soft hat; Schatzel was wearing a soft blue hat he had bought in Poughkeepsie. Later in the day witness saw Malone in Paddy McGowan's saloon; Malone came in, stood along side of witness and said he liked his (witness's) hat and would swap hats, offering half a dollar besides. Schatzel said he told Malone he would "swap anyway," without the money.

A blue hat was produced by District Attorney Traver and shown to Schatzel, who said:

"That's the bird."

The brown hat which he got from Schatzel, he wore until he saw Malone's picture in the Newburgh News; the picture showed Malone wearing the blue hat Schatzel had traded and to himself he said: "Hell, he ain't going to have nothing on me," so he went to police headquarters and turned the brown hat over to Police-man Adams.

Schatzel identified the brown hat which was produced by Mr. Traver.

Saw Blue Hat in Picture.

Cross-examination: It was not on September 27 that he told the story to the police. He kept the paper containing the pictures.

Q—"How did you happen to do that?"

A—"Because it had my fat in the paper."

Schatzel said he recognized the hat because it was blue and it showed blue in the paper; the type in the paper was not blue but the hat was blue in the picture. He did not know if it was Van Kleeck's or one in Poughkeepsie where he had bought the hat; if the hat showed Van Kleeck's name inside, it must have been there.

Schatzel said Malone had not given 50 cents to boot but had bought 50 cents worth of drinks for the two or three people in the saloon. No money was passed on the "swap," his hat cost only 50 cents any way.

"Said Morano Got Killed."

James Sullivan testified he lived at Pine Bush, Orange county, and was in Newburgh on September 27, when he had a talk with Malone at Long's Hotel. A Mr. Coyle was bartender, and asked witness to go over to Broadway and John street and call Malone over. Coyle asked him to have a drink; Malone mentioned a complaint he had and took some "blackberry." Malone asked what kind of a jail they had in Newburgh and said he might be in jail in three or four hours.

Juror Oscar Coddington leaned forward and asked:

"Who said that he might be in jail?"

"The prisoner said it," answered Sullivan.

"Malone?" asked District Attorney Traver.

"Yes," said Sullivan.

Q—"What else did he say?"

A—"He said that Morano got killed."

Nothing was said about any horse or anyone being a horse thief.

To Mr. Loughran's question as to whether Sullivan had not stated on the hearing before the justice of the peace that Malone had added, "I just got out of the Kingston jail, I'm a notorious horse thief and they'll probably blame me," Sullivan answered:

"Anything is possible."

Re-direct examination:

Witness recollected something was said about a horsethief.

Re-cross examination:

Malone bought one drink and witness bought one. Don't remember testifying before the justice of the peace that "He (Malone) didn't have enough money on the bar, I was drinking whiskey and said 'I'd pay the difference, but he paid it.'"

Used Morano's Name Again.

William Coyle testified he lived at 177 Water street, Newburgh. On September 27 he heard of the death of a man at Marlborough, a man known Malone there. In cleaning up the hotel that morning for his mother, he found two pool racks and was taking them to the pool room when he saw Malone and called "Hello, Whitey." Thinking Malone had not heard, he sent Sullivan to call him over. Witness asked Malone when he got out of the Kingston jail, and Malone said "yesterday afternoon," and came down this morning. Michael was killed last night and they accuse me."

Witness felt "a little leary" about him, thinking he had been mixed up in it on account of having stolen a horse, and went in the next room. Later Malone bought a drink, inquired about restaurants and whether he could get a room. Later, in looking out of the

whether such stains were human blood.

Objection overruled.

A—They had the same characteristics as human blood; it is impossible to say they were human blood.

Wouldn't Say It Was Human Blood.

Cross-examination:

Dr. Deguehee described in detail the process he had followed in making his chemical tests. A solution was made and chemicals added; the mixture was heated over a slow flame until it began to boil and was allowed to cool. A test with brownish red crystals formed—a test which only blood responds. This is known as the Heilmann test.

Mr. Loughran read a statement from a scientific text book that "According to Belchert, exactly the same results are obtained from indigo," and asked Dr. Deguehee if that was true.

The doctor said he disagreed with the statement as to results, and disagreed with other experts, basing his opinion on what he had read but not on personal experience. He would not say that these were human blood stains but only that they had the character of blood. He had also soaked some of the stains with a salt solution which brings blood corpuscles back to their original shape and had then examined them under the microscope. He expected to charge about $50 for his services.

Traded Brown Hat For Blue.

Albert Schatzel testified he now lives at the Poughkeepsie State Hospital, last September he was employed by the Central-Hudson Steamboat Company. On September 27 he saw Malone between 10:30 and 11 o'clock at the New York Hotel, 102 Broadway, Newburgh. Malone came in and asked witness to have a drink. Witness asked him where his shoe strings were. Malone said he did not have any. Malone asked the fellow who cleaned up the hotel if he had any kind of a cap. Malone was wearing a soft hat; Schatzel was wearing a soft blue hat he had bought in Poughkeepsie. Later in the day witness saw Malone in Paddy McGowan's saloon; Malone came in, stood along side of witness and said he liked his (witness's) hat and would swap hats, offering half a dollar besides. Schatzel said he told Malone he would "swap anyway," without the money.

A blue hat was produced by District Attorney Traver and shown to Schatzel, who said:

"That's the bird."

The brown hat which he got from Schatzel, he wore until he saw Malone's picture in the Newburgh News; the picture showed Malone wearing the blue hat Schatzel had traded and to himself he said: "Hell, he ain't going to have nothing on me," so he went to police headquarters and turned the brown hat over to Police-man Adams.

Schatzel identified the brown hat which was produced by Mr. Traver.

Saw Blue Hat in Picture.

Cross-examination: It was not on September 27 that he told the story to the police. He kept the paper containing the pictures.

Q—"How did you happen to do that?"

A—"Because it had my fat in the paper."

Schatzel said he recognized the hat because it was blue and it showed blue in the paper; the type in the paper was not blue but the hat was blue in the picture. He did not know if it was Van Kleeck's or one in Poughkeepsie where he had bought the hat; if the hat showed Van Kleeck's name inside, it must have been there.

Good cooks all over the world are sending to America for Mazola, the oil pressed from Corn—for cooking and salads

BECAUSE with pure, wholesome Mazola they can continue to have the most delicate and delicious pastries, fried and sautéed dishes—in spite of the world shortage of animal fats.

And Mazola is so wonderfully economical—can be used over and over again—never carries taste or odor from one food to another, even fish or onions.

You will also find that Mazola makes exceptionally good salad dressings—easy to mix, smooth, pure and sweet as the best olive oil dressings.

For sale in pints, quarts, half gallons and gallons. For greater economy buy the large sizes.

There is a valuable Cook Book for Mazola users. It shows you how to fry, sauté, make dressings and sauces more delicious, make light digestible pastry. Should be in every home. Send for it or ask your grocer. FREE asked him his name and he told him it was "Frank Smith." In giving him his pedigree, Malone said he was a laborer, married, and 27 years old.

Corn Products Refining Company P. O. Box 161, New York

When searched, the police found a knife, spectacles, glasses, a $1 bill, 99 cents in change, two watches—one with a tag pendant, a small blank note book, tobacco, safety pins, collar buttons and chewing gum, all of which Adams identified. He also identified the clothing and blue hat.

Cross-examination: Malone was not very drunk when arrested but had been drinking. Witness would not handcuff a one-armed man.

Said His Name Was Smith.

Policeman Frank Lowe testified that when Malone was brought in police headquarters, he gave his name as "Smith," and denied it was "Malone." He wore a gray suit and blue cloth hat. Lowe identified the watch with the bob.

Cross-examination: Malone did not ask what crime he was charged with; he did not say he had not committed any murder.

Lieutenant Christopher J. Miles of the Newburgh police, testified that when brought to headquarters on September 27, Miles told him he knew he was Malone because he had his description "from the time he stole a horse."

Mr. Loughran objected to this statement on the ground that the grand jury had found he did not steal a horse, and the lieutenant's statement was stricken out. His testimony was similar to that of Policeman Lowe.

No cross-examination.

Policeman Adams, re-called, testified that Albert Schatzel had turned over to him a brown soft hat, which he identified.

Charles T. Markie, train baggage-man on train 14 on September 27, identified the tags, etc., connected with the single piece of baggage, a russet bag, which went from Marlborough to Newburgh that morning, and recalled having considered reporting the bag in bad order because one edge was broken. He could not identify the brown bag in the case as the one he had handled.

No cross-examination.

3045 BOOKS FOR OUR SOLDIERS

Library Report Shows Good Work in Kingston But Books Will Still Be Gladly Received.

The City Library reports that the people of Kingston have contributed 3045 books since March 18 for the use of our soldiers and sailors and that more books are still coming in.

It is to be hoped that week after week there will continue to come in steadily for our men will need books as long as the war lasts and the supply must be constantly replenished. All the public is urged to form the habit of turning in their new books as soon as they have read them. In this way, a constant stream of fresh books into the camps will be assured and a most effective barrage established against the blue devils of loneliness and depression.

All books received will be prepared for use according to the simple rules laid down by the Library War Service of the American Library Association and will be shipped to such points as the A. L. A. may designate. The needs of all camps and stations in this country will be taken care of first. Most of the books collected along the Atlantic seaboard will be shipped to France as rapidly as possible. At least half a million are needed there at once and a constant stream of replacements must be maintained for the war will be very great. Hence the call for books, books, and more books.

The A. L. A. has built up an organization capable of handling thousands and thousands. That the books will be forthcoming cannot be doubted.

Sheerest chiffons, lustrous silks come like new from the pure Lux suds

No rubbing to shrink and stiffen woollens. Lux leaves blankets soft and Assey

Such a lather! Thick and creamy. The delicate flakes dissolve instantly in hot water

Buy the daintiest things - Use them often

Nothing is too delicate for these suds

THE next time you long to purchase some lovely, exquisite blouse or bit of finery, don't hesitate because you're afraid it won't stand laundering.

In the wonderful Lux suds, you can wash the sheerest, finest fabrics, and they will come out just like new!

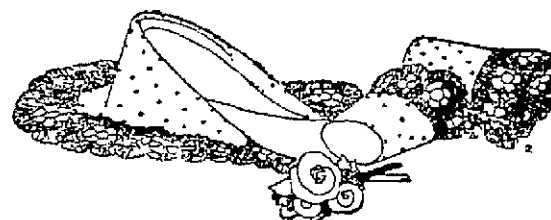

Lux suds! You cannot really appreciate how rich and cleansing they are, until you actually see them and use them yourself.

There is nothing else like Lux! Lux comes in delicate, transparent flakes. They melt instantly in hot water. You whisk them into rich, creamy suds. Such a lather! Thick and creamy. 'All white and foamy and bubbling.

Rubbing ruins dainty fabrics

Into these creamy suds you dip your garment. Don't rub—just work the article about briskly in the lather. The dirt dissolves and drops right out into the suds!

Rubbing soap on a delicate material, and rubbing it out again is what ruins the fabric. It weakens and breaks the delicate threads.

No matter how delicate the fabric, it will come like new from the wonderful Lux suds

A tablespoonful to a blouse

Simply tumble a tablespoonful of dainty Lux flakes into half a basinful of boiling or very hot water, and whisk into a thick lather. Add cold water until lukewarm. Dip the blouse through the foamy suds many times—squeeze the suds through it. Don't rub. Then rinse three times in clear, lukewarm water. You squeeze the water out—do not wring. Dry it in the shade. When nearly dry, press with a warm iron—never a hot one.

This Lux way is so much easier than the old way of washing. Your dainty clothes will last so much longer—your silks won't lose their soft coloring or turn yellow. Your woollens won't grow hard and stiff.

Never trust your precious things to the old way of washing. Try the Lux way today. Get your package from your grocer, druggist or department store—Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

UNDERNEATH THE CITY HALL DOME

Cops Receive Books on Care of Babies—Water Situation Normal—Police Court Quiet—Street Department Busy.

There has been considerable amusement occasioned among the members of the police force when the mail man the other day delivered at police headquarters little booklets on "The Care of the Baby" from the state health department. The amusement was caused by the fact that some of the single cops also received a copy of the booklet.

At the water board office this morning it was stated that the water situation in Kingston was again normal. There is, and has been plenty of water all winter. Fewer leaks are being reported.

There were no cases in police court today, and the police found the city quiet during the night.

Members of the street department are busy today repairing the brick pavement which had been torn up in search of gas leaks. The department has not started any street repair work this season yet, but as soon as weather conditions permit work will be resumed.

If the bill for the two days for the local option election is signed by Governor Whitman it will mean additional work for the police department. Under the provision of the bill it provides that a policeman must be stationed at the polling place all night to watch the ballot boxes. The "dry" and the "wet" are also allowed to furnish two watchers each to see that there is no tampering with the ballot boxes. This will mean that the police department will have to call upon the "specials" for duty the night of April 16, as there are not enough regulars to care for the regular patrol duty and also look after the polling places.

May 3 has been fixed as the date for holding the next chauffeur's examination in Kingston at the city hall. The examination will be held at 9 o'clock in the morning, as usual.

The iron cops have been thoroughly overhauled and repainted and when traffic becomes heavy will resume duty at the various street corners.

PORT EWEN.

A Dog and Cat Fight.

Pedestrians on Broadway near St. James street, were treated to an amusing sight about 8 o'clock Wednesday night when a cat hardly larger than a kitten came out the victor in a scrap with a big dog. The dog started the hostilities. The cat did not run. It used its claws with telling effect. The dog beat a retreat, then came back and tried it again with the same result. A little later the dog gave up the fight in disgust and walked away, a wiser and sadder canine.

Fat is a vital food. Because it is a high energy producing (or fuel) food, soldiers and working people especially need much fat. Certain fats contain substances that are believed to be essential for growth and for life itself. The most important of these are milk fat, egg yolk fat, cod liver oil and beef fat. There is a great shortage of fat in the world. The allies are especially asking for this food. Most Americans are eating more fat than they need. They should reduce the amount of this food which they are consuming daily. Many housewives are throwing fat into the garbage pail. Every bit of fat, no matter how small, should be put to use.

Baked Cheese.

One cup bread crumbs, 1 pint milk, 2 eggs 1/2 teaspoon salt, paprika, 3 tablespoons melted butter, 1/4 pound grated cheese (1 cup).

Mix the butter with the crumbs, add the salt and paprika, the cheese and the eggs beaten and mixed with the milk. Turn the mixture into buttered scalloped shells or cups and bake until the egg is set. Serve at once in the dishes.

Harvard Beets.

Wash 12 small beets, cook in boiling water until soft, remove the skins and cut the beets in thin slices or dice. Canned beets may be used. Mix 1/2 cup of corn syrup and 1/2 tablespoon cornstarch, add 1/2 cup diluted vinegar and boil five minutes. Pour over the beets and let them stand on the back of the stove one-half hour. Just before serving add 2 tablespoons of butter.

Recipes for any of the dishes in these menus which cannot be found in cook books may be had by writing to the Department of Home Economics, State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT.

"BONE DRY! BONE DRY!"

This favorite scare phrase of the "wets" is again being worked overtime by the liquor interests in a futile attempt to influence a comparatively small percentage of city voters who in times past have been known to take an occasional drink or perhaps to have an occasional case of beer delivered at their homes. "If the city goes dry," they are saying in advertisements in many of the city papers, "you cannot have liquor of any kind in your possession." Their insistence upon this terrifying prospect will recall to most readers of these advertisements an interesting bit of recent history which it would seem the "wets" would prefer not to revive.

The so-called "bone-dry" provision in the city option law was written into the measure by the "wet" leaders in the legislature of last year shortly before its enactment, for the transparent purpose of making local option unpopular and no license obnoxious as a means of stemming the growing tide of public sentiment against the liquor traffic and toward state-wide prohibition. The same provision was written into the liquor tax law with reference to local option elections in the townships of the state and the same "wet" legislators were responsible for changing the percentage of excise revenue going to municipalities from fifty to seventy-five per cent.

The passage of these amendments was hailed with high glee by the "wets," and they then set back to watch results. The first test, however, in the town local option elections of last fall, gave them a bad jolt and quite upset their calculations. For 114 towns, totally disregarding the cry of "bone-dry" and the additional revenue bait, gave big majorities for no license, while only nine changed from "dry" to "wet," thus making a net gain of 105 "dry" towns at a single election.

In their zeal to make the law offensive the "wets" have even intimated, and frequently declared publicly, that voting a city "dry" would prevent the use of wine in sacramental or other religious services. Courts throughout the United States have repeatedly ruled the use of wine for such purposes is a recognized act of religious worship and is therefore constitutionally exempt from the provisions of a general prohibition law, even if not specifically exempted by the act itself. But to make the law on this point absolutely clear and specific the following amendment to the Hill-Wheeler city option law was adopted at the special session of the New York Legislature last August, becoming effective on August 29, 1917:

"The provisions of this subdivision shall not be deemed to prohibit, in any such town or city, the possession of wine for sacramental purposes, nor the possession by a duly licensed pharmacist of alcohol to be used as a preservative or solvent in the manufacture and compounding of drugs and medicines, nor the possession of alcohol necessary for any manufacturing process, nor to prohibit the delivery of such liquors in such town or city for such purposes or acceptance for such delivery."

This ought to be plain enough for any honest man of ordinary intelligence to understand but a bill has been introduced in the present legislature still further amplifying this provision and making it so clear that "a wayfaring man, though a fool, may not err therein."

The "bone-dry" proposition far from being a blow to the no-license forces, has actually been a boomerang to the "wets." The dry advocates in the towns are well pleased with the supposedly hostile move, for, they say, "now when we vote our town dry we know it will be dry in fact as well as in name." The same thing will hold true in the cities. If, as the "wets" predicted when the law was passed, the law will "smoke out the hypocrites," the voter who will put his own personal appetite above the welfare of his community who will vote "wet" simply in order that he may have his booze, will set a price for himself which looks like about thirty cents. Even the most violent objector to "bone dryness" will be compelled to recognize that he has only the "wets" to blame for making it possible, and even probable, that the voters of half the New York State cities will make a clean sweep of booze at their respective city elections on April 16.

City Fathers Held an Informal Session in Matter Wednesday—May be 28 Election Districts—Must be Done Soon.

At the close of the public hearing of the charter amendment as related in another column, the city fathers Wednesday evening held an informal meeting and discussed the redistricting of the city's election districts for the November election. The city must be redistricted before July 1, for the next general election in November, and will probably come up for action at the June meeting of the city fathers.

Under tentative plans that have been discussed there will be at least twenty-eight voting districts under the redistricting plan instead of thirteen as at present. This will mean an additional 120 election officers to care for the new districts.

One important factor that must be considered in dividing up the present election districts is the problem of securing additional places in which to hold the election. In some of the wards there will be no trouble experienced in securing additional polling places, but in other wards it will present a problem.

In redistricting the wards the aldermen must also take into consideration the number of voters in each ward. The recent police census is expected to be of great assistance in the matter as it will give the number of voters residing in each block in redistricting the city. An effort will be made to balance up the vote so that each district will have about the same number of voters, to handle on election day.

The informal discussion Wednesday was to get the aldermen busy on the proposition so that when the matter comes up at the June meeting the work of redistricting the city will be accomplished at that time.

Wouldst shape a noble life? Then cast No backward glance toward the past, And though somewhat be lost and gone, Tet do thou act as one new-born, What each day needs thou shalt ask, Each day will get its proper task. —Goethe.

THE TASTY RHUBARB.

Rhubarb is a most valuable spring tonic, being filled with oxalic acid which contains purgative properties which are particularly good for a sluggish liver.

Rhubarb Pudding.—Place slices of buttered bread in a baking dish, heap over them finely cut rhubarb, with sugar, a little nutmeg and a dash of rum; bake until the rhubarb has soaked the bread. Serve from the baking dish.

Rhubarb Custard Pie.—Add to two well beaten eggs two tablespoonsfuls of cornstarch mixed with a cupful of milk, a half cupful of sugar and a cupful of cooked sweetened rhubarb. Pour this mixture into a pastry-lined plate and bake. Cover with a meringue if so desired, or serve with whipped cream well sweetened.

Rhubarb Whip.—When eggs are more plentiful, try this: Beat the whites of three eggs to a stiff froth, add three tablespoonsfuls of powdered sugar and a teaspoonful of lemon juice, then a pint of stewed rhubarb. Sprinkle the top with nuts when serving.

Rhubarb and Raisin Pie.—Add equal amounts of raisins and chopped rhubarb to the crust, as usual. For children, this may be cooked as sauce, making a most tasty one.

Rhubarb Bread Pudding.—Pour boiling water over a pint of stale bread crumbs and let stand until soft, then drain and add one beaten egg, one tablespoonful of sugar, a grating of nutmeg. Have ready buttered cups, and put into each a half tablespoonful of cooked rhubarb, well sweetened, and put over the crumbs mixture, and bake. Cake crumbs or slices of stale sponge cake may be used and served with whipped cream.

Rhubarb Sage Pudding.—Sage or tarragon for this. Soak a cupful of sage in a quart of water, add a teaspoonful of salt. Thin with hot water until like heavy cream, then pour over a dish of cut rhubarb sweetened to taste, and bake one hour. Serve with whipped cream.

Nellie Maxwell*Porkers Cut Down Dairy Output.

Ernest E. Gouley, a dairyman of Portland, Ore., became discouraged because his cows gave such a small quantity of milk. Then he became suspicious and established a close watch over his business. He also owned several pigs which were becoming fat very rapidly. Presently the pigs were helping themselves to the milk. Now the pigs are separated from the cows and the dairy business has picked up.

His Trouble.

"You are looking miserable, Rube. Why don't you ask a doctor what ails you?"

"I know what ails me—quick consumption!"

"You don't mean it?"

"I do. I have to eat my breakfast in two gulps to catch the train, and my lunch in two more to get back to the office." —Boston Transcript.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE
BY MARY GRAHAM BOWENTHE MUSK-OX.

"I will not be imposed upon," said the white-fronted Musk-Ox.

And to prove that he meant it he would not have anything to do with the animals any younger than himself. "They are so young," he said. "They don't know enough to suit me."

"Are you so fond of knowledge?" asked his brother, Miller Musk-Ox.

"I don't like young and silly animals about me," said Mr. Musk-Ox. "And I don't intend to put up with it, I don't."

So Mr. Musk-Ox was quite the ruler in his parts. His home was in the northern part of Canada, where the land was very barren and desolate and wild.

It was not long before Mr. Musk-Ox saw a creature he liked very much indeed, and that was Miss Musk-Ox. He didn't think she was young, nor foolish. He thought she was quite perfect. When he went to see her he did not boast about his great strength and how he wanted to rule the land about. He was a different kind of Musk-Ox. And brother Miller Musk-Ox watched and was very much amused.

Miss Musk-Ox was certainly very handsome. Her hair covered her whole body, which was quite big, though she was not nearly so large as Mr. Musk-Ox.

"Your hair is lovely," Mr. Musk-Ox said.

And Miss Musk-Ox tried to blush, for she thought that was the right thing to do, but she was so brown and so woolly that she couldn't, somehow, get the color to show, though she felt as if she must be blushing.

"Yes," continued Mr. Musk-Ox, "you have the most wonderful brown hair I have ever seen. It's much lighter than mine—it's so much softer and it's so very thick."

"You have beautiful hair, Miss Musk-Ox. In fact, beautiful doesn't half express it. I can't find the words to tell you what I think of your hair. Ah, such a color, so soft! So thick."

"And you are so sensible, too; you have come good straight hair over that which is your umbrella. I'm glad to see you have your own umbrella. It would be hard for me to provide you with one, for I could never cover up your masses of hair. And your umbrella is the finest ever a Musk-Ox had."

Miss Musk-Ox turned her big eyes upon Mr. Musk-Ox and smiled, a rare smile, which Mr. Musk-Ox thought very wonderful.

"The Musk-Ox family have straight, long hair which is quite thick over their beautiful soft woolly hair, and it sheds the rain from them in the storms. Otherwise they would become soaking wet, for their own hair is so heavy it would catch and hold all the rain."

"I'm glad you like my umbrella," said Miss Musk-Ox.

"Yes," said Mr. Musk-Ox, "and it's the only thing I can't offer you—for mine would do you no good. It's a big relief to feel you have one of your own. And as I have said before, it's the very best umbrella I've ever seen."

Then Mr. Musk-Ox moved a little and under one foot he showed what he had been hiding all this time, a bunch of hay for Miss Musk-Ox. He had been standing in the same position all the time he had been talking.

"This is for you, Miss Musk-Ox," he said, and his face looked quite silly, though Miss Musk-Ox thought it was very handsome.

"And it means," he continued, "that I want to look after you always. To get your food and to be your dear Musk-Ox companion. Will you, will you," he stammered, "become Mrs. Musk-Ox?"

Miss Musk-Ox was all a-tremble. Her long brown hair shook, for she was so nervous with excitement. But how happy and proud she was!

"You're just about my age, aren't you?" asked Mr. Musk-Ox. "You're not young and foolish I know."

"I'm just four age," Miss Musk-Ox answered.

"I thought so," said Mr. Musk-Ox delightedly. "And will you do me the honor to become Mrs. Musk-Ox?" he asked again.

"I will be honored myself," said Miss Musk-Ox. "It will make me very happy." And brother Miller Musk-Ox grinned as he saw them walking off together, and heard Mr. Musk-Ox say that he wanted the new Mrs. Musk-Ox to do all the mauling and bossing in the Musk-Ox family!

CANTEEN WOMAN TELLS OF WORK IN FRANCE

Tells How Workers Meet Poiluis With Boilers Filled With Coffee.

The following is an excerpt from a letter of an American Red Cross canteen worker in France, describing the work of the canteen women and the experiences which enliven the daily routine of their lives:

"We meet the trains at the station—they have only a short stop—and with great boilers full of hot coffee, and on these cold winter nights you don't know how grateful the Poiluis hold out their battered tin cups to have them filled."

"The canteen itself is very pleasant, with brightly colored walls, a beautiful painting by a former judge of the Salon, who has a country home near by, a son who is a prisoner in Germany and a charming daughter who is one of the helpers at the canteen. He has donated a large seascape and wants the Red Cross to take it back to America after the war."

Good Food Served.
"Then we have a phonograph which is an endless source of pleasure to the men, and soon when our new recreation room is in order we shall hire a piano. We serve good food at a much lower price than they can get at the railroad restaurants, and, as the Poiluis receive 5 cents a day, it means a lot to them."

"The bread ration is very strict at present, and it is hard to have to refuse more than one sou of bread to each man when he looks up in a hungry fashion and says: 'But how can I eat this cheese without a little more bread?' The one expression that seems to cover everything over here is la guerre, but sometimes you see it brings very little comfort."

"The suffering in the world comes home so to one here. Why, just the other night when I was on duty at the canteen, which is at the station, a poor soldier had both legs run over and torn off by a train. We tried to do what we could to help the doctor who just happened to be changing trains. Our Red Cross car took the man off to a hospital. I shall never forget how, while I was holding his hand trying to comfort him, he repeated over and over, 'Mes trois pauvres enfants' (my three poor children)."

Hospital Unit Complete.
Base hospital unit No. 13, composed of students, alumni and former students of the University of Chicago, as well as doctors and nurses from the Presbyterian hospital of Chicago, and enlisted men from the universities of Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Beloit college and Northwestern university, is now in the South. Of this unit the personnel is complete, and as it now stands it has 152 enlisted men, 100 field nurses, 26 doctors and six civilian secretaries.

Another Use for Cement.
Through the shrewdness of structural steel, roof trusses of timber incased in cement have been used for buildings of a Texas oil refinery. After putting in place, the trusses were wrapped with a layer of light waterproof building paper, and sheets of expanded metal, with half-inch diamond mesh, were fitted around the paper, and held in place by the surface by chairs and nails. A coating of one and a half inches of cement mortar was then applied with cement guns. The roof was covered with a one and a half-inch monolithic slab, built in place by the use of wire mesh re-enforcing, and cement mortar applied by cement guns from below against wood panels, which were removed after 24 hours. The cement surface was given a final coating of hot asphalt paint.

Little Time for Romance.
"Tell me some of the things you do on shipboard," said the impressionable young woman. "Well, ma'am," replied the matter-of-fact tar, "we scrub decks, we polish brass, we load coal and—"

"Dear me! You don't get much romance out of that kind of work, do you?" "No; what we get out of it is mostly our pay and our keep."

"Ki" in the Navy.
Navy canteen, which Princess Mary thought might be good to eat as chocolate, is known aboard ship as ki. It is served out on the first dog watch every Thursday, and it is drunk when over circumstances (in other words, the ship's "crusher," or policeman) permit. The men grope down a liberal quantity of it (for ki is less concentrated than shore cocoa) and drink it mixed in basins with sugar and condensed milk. At sea a special caution of ki, prepared by the ship's cook, is sent round action stations in "forwards," or large pitchers. Midnight for the guard crew's of our fleet is the hour when the ki boat arrives.—London Chronicle.

Curse of Misgovernment.
To be governed by small men is not only a misfortune, but it is a curse and a sin, and alas the cause also of all manner of curses and sins.—Carlyle.

not covered with dust. The other tools, inside the tool house, were covered with dust. Morano told a lot of people about the hammer and somebody brought it to Kingston.

District Attorney Traver produced a hammer which Morano identified.

At the time the state military census was taken last summer, said Morano, Miss Elsie Banker came to see Joe about the census and gave him a paper, whose Morano did not know because he cannot read.

Morano said Dominick was wrong.

Cross-examination: That morning Morano found Joe's cap on a wine barrel; there was some blood on the inside and dust on the outside. After going to bed that night he heard an automobile on the Ridge road; he often thought automobiles which he heard different nights on the road were coming in the lane.

BLOODY STONE AND CLEAN HAMMER

Morano said he got up about five o'clock and had been up before that—about four o'clock—when it was dark and he went back to bed because it was "too early" for him. He did not notice whether it was too dark or not.

On the hearing before the justice of the peace, Morano stated that when he got up at four o'clock he "looked out of the window" and saw it was too dark.

He first saw Dominick that morning when he came back after being up on the hill and seen Joe's body. Dominick was mixed up in his time.

Morano's Contradictions.

Mr. Loughran read from Morano's testimony before the justice of the peace when Morano testified that Dominick was up "as I was ready to go up on the hill." Dominick had made coffee before witness went up on the hill.

Morano said perhaps he was mixed up he could not remember "all that."

He went to bed between 8:30 and 9 o'clock the night before, said Morano. On the hearing before Justice of the Peace Alexander Johnston he testified that Dominick came home at eight o'clock and "went right to bed," and "I was in bed when he came home."

"Maybe I did say that," said Morano. "I cannot remember all those things. Maybe I was in bed and got up."

Morano said his son, Arthur, was not at home when Dominick came home. On the justice's hearing he testified Arthur was in the house then.

Mixed Concrete at 5 A. M.

No building has been erected on the foundation yet. Work on the foundation was begun last September; labor was hard to get. When he went on the hill that morning he started to mix cement; he looked over toward the trees and saw and heard him both at the same time. He was 25 or 30 feet away.

Q—"Did you see blood that morning?"

A—"Blood all over him; on strawberry plants, on truck."

When he went back to the house he stood outside the bed room door and told his wife, talking ten or fifteen minutes while he stood outside the door. He went to the doctor's alone. Some fertilizer bags were placed under Joe's head.

On the justice's hearing, Morano testified he looked over the ground where "they" dragged him.

Q—"Who did you mean by 'they'?"

A—"I don't understand that."

Morano always wore a gray suit when on the farm; never a brown suit. He thought perhaps he saw him wear a brown suit once.

On his dining room table he kept a small clock, which he looked at. On the justice's hearing he testified he did not have any clock.

On the justice's hearing he testified that he heard an automobile and that waked him; he was asleep.

Morano said he could not remember; the people made a mistake with pen and ink.

On the justice's hearing he testified he heard "automobiles" going along the road and "think they come in, but they go right on."

On the justice's hearing, Morano testified that "when the people came, we looked around for this stone business."

Q—"Your notion was that a stone was used to crush Joe Michael's skull. Did you mention this hammer then?"

A. I don't remember.

Q. The record is silent. Why didn't you mention it?

A. I don't remember.

Morano remembered having told Mr. Loughran last November that he found Joe's cap inside a barrel, that there was a clot of blood on the inside and it looked as if a man had wiped his hands on it.

Q. Did you tell me that?

A. Well, what's the difference? I don't remember all.

Sent for Priest After Man Was Dead.

Father Handley, said Morano, found the cap; he had sent for Father Handley, who told him he had been away when the boy got to his house, but he came as soon as he could.

Q. Now, as a matter of fact, didn't Father Handley ask you why you sent for him after the man was dead?

A. I think he did.

Q. And didn't you say that Joe had some life insurance and you wanted to give him a good funeral?

A. "I don't remember."

Q. "Didn't you stand up in Justice Johnston's court and say you had a violent temper and might kill somebody if you got mad, and didn't Justice Johnston tell you to sit down and nobody was afraid of you?"

A. "No? I don't remember anything like that."

Re-direct examination: At the hearing before Justice Johnston, he did not mention the hammer because he was not asked. He did not threaten to kill anybody at that hearing.

Morano's memory was uncertain regarding the clock or watch on the table. Regarding automobiles, going by, he meant that they went by often at night; not that night.

Newman Remembered.

William H. Newman, recalled, testified that when he saw Malone walking down the road, he had testified Wednesday afternoon he did not recall seeing a valise in his hand. Since then he had recollected that he testified before the grand jury and before the magistrate that Malone did have a valise in his hand.

No cross-examination.

Lowis Lyons testified he had seen Malone and Joe in Hewitt's hotel the night of September 27; Joe and another man went out just ahead of witness and went up Western avenue behind them. In the hotel he heard Joe say "You stay up here; horse and go to jail." Malone replied, "You go back and work for that Wap for a dollar a day."

Cross-examination: At the justice's hearing, don't remember testifying "they all went out in a heap."

Re-direct examination: Testified that the three went out ahead of me.

Military Census Card Found in Suit.

Elsie Banker testified that when the state military census was taken last summer she visited Morano's

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, April 11.—There was a show of weakness at the opening of the stock market today, resulting chiefly from selling by room traders, who looked on the war news as disappointing. First prices ranged from fractions to one point lower. There was no continuation of the pressure, however, and prices moved up fractionally. Sinclair Oil dropped 1 1/2 to 25 1/2, on the suspension of dividends. Mexican Petroleum opened 1/2 lower at 52 1/2, and Reading advanced 1/4 to 74 1/2. New York Central opened 1/4 higher at 58 1/2, and Distillers was 1/4 higher at 43 1/2. Trading was very quiet after the start. Liberty Bonds were quiet, the 4 1/2's selling at 98.58 while the second 4's were traded in at 98.

The market held fairly well during the first hour, but later there was a liquidating movement from many sources causing losses of from 1 to over 2 points. Steel Common sold down about one point and Reading, selling in fairly large blocks, dropped 1 1/2 to 78 1/2. Marine Preferred was in supply and dropped 1/4 to 91 1/2. Inspiration, which had moved up to 49 1/2, dropped to 48 1/2, and Sinclair yielded 1 1/2 to 25 1/2. Union Pacific was the weakest of the rails, selling down to 117 1/2, while American Car and Foundry was one point lower at 77.

The market closed weak today; government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds weak.

MALONE CASE SHOWS
VARIETY OF FACTS

Malone Borrowed Five Dollars, Which He Used in Buying Drinks in Newburgh Where He Told Witnesses That "Morano" Had Been Killed.

The trial of Thomas Malone on a charge of murder in the second degree proceeded rapidly before Judge Jenkins and a jury in county court Wednesday afternoon when a number of witnesses were examined by District Attorney Traver for the People and cross-examined by John T. Loughran, counsel for Malone.

The afternoon's testimony was to the effect that Malone arrived at the shanty where he had lived up to the time of his arrest in August, at two o'clock in the morning after his release from the Kingston jail when the grand jury had failed to indict him for horse stealing; borrowed five dollars from his former employer, Edward McCarthy, the following morning, bought a ticket to Newburgh and checked a brown valise to that place; drank considerably, telling a bartender and another man that "Morano" had been killed at Marlborough, and when arrested told the police his name was Smith. A chemist testified that spots on the shirt were when arrested contained evidences of blood, having the same characteristics as human blood.

Cross-examination brought out the fact that the part of Michael's brain which was injured is a seat of respiration; that the chemist who examined the spots on the clothing worn by Malone would not say that the blood was human blood and that the Newburgh policeman who arrested Malone complied with Malone's request not to handcuff him because he had only one hand and several fingers were missing from the other hand.

Dr. Henry Van Hovenberg was recalled by the People and testified that persons injured as Michael was sometimes live for considerable time after the injury; Michael could have lived from eleven o'clock in the evening until seven o'clock the following morning.

Seal of Respiration Injured. Cross-examination: The part of Michael's brain which was injured is an important part of the brain. It is the seat of respiration. The doctor would not consider it unusual for him to live from 11 p. m. to 7 a. m. with that kind of injury. There was no evidence of Michael having bled from his nose or ears; it is usual for persons to bleed from nose and ears when the fracture is at the base of the brain; this fracture was not the base.

2 a. m. When Malone Came Home. John Moore testified that he lived at Edward McCarthy's farm, about two miles from Marlborough village, and was employed by McCarthy last September. He said Malone was also employed there last summer and both lived in two shanties close together, the shanties being about six feet apart. Malone ceased living there "some time before the apples were ripe." He was away two or three weeks. When he came back it was early in the morning and he came in and wanted the key of his shanty. Just after he gave Malone the key and turned around to the bed, the clock struck two.

Later about 6 o'clock Moore heard someone walking around in the shanty who then went out. About twenty minutes later somebody came back to the shanty and went out again. He did not see anyone either time. Moore arose after 7 o'clock and went to work in the orchard. While working there, Mr. Carthy told him there had been a murder and asked about Malone. Later McCarthy and a man whom he identified as Assistant District Attorney Haskins came and asked questions. Malone said Moore had worked for McCarthy since he knew him. He had seen him once selling shoe strings. He knew Malone had a valise but did not know its color.

No cross-examination. Borrowed $5 From McCarthy. Edward McCarthy testified that his fruit farm was two miles west of Marlborough and last summer he had employed Moore and Malone. While Malone worked there he lived in the shanty close to that occupied by Moore, the doors being five or six feet apart and opposite each other. In August Malone stopped working for him and began peddling produce for Morano, with Morano's rig, but continued to live at the shanty. On the morning of September 27, Malone came to the house about 6.30 o'clock and McCarthy expressed surprise at his being back from Kingston, and asked him how he got out of jail. Malone replied that nobody had appeared against him. Malone wanted to borrow five dollars to go to New York and McCarthy gave him the money, offering also to give him a cup of coffee, but Malone said he did not have time to wait. He started down the arbor toward the barn. Cross-examination: Q.—"He refused the coffee?" A.—"Yes." Q.—"You know he was a drinking man?" A.—"Yes." Q.—"And a man who has been drinking at night generally isn't looking for coffee the next morning?" Question withdrawn.

Inquired About Bus For Newburgh. Michael Bradley testified he was employed at McGowan's Hotel and that he saw Vincent Morano in front of the hotel about five minutes before six o'clock on the morning of September 27. Morano told him about Michael being hurt. A little later Malone came in the hotel and inquired if there was a bus for Newburgh. Bradley told him a bus would leave at 5 o'clock. Malone inquired about train time and went out. Through the window Bradley noticed Malone was carrying a valise but did not remember the size or color.

Carried Brown Valise at Depot. William H. Newman testified he was employed by Samuel Hewitt as chauffeur. On the morning of September 27, he drove his car to the Marlborough station on the West Shore railroad. He saw Malone walking down the duck hill and saw a soft slouch hat and at the station he was carrying a brown valise on which there was a tag bearing the word "Passed." Malone asked about trains and witness told him the train was half an hour late.

On Malone's face appeared a slight scratch and some blood on the right ear. If he said on the examination before the magistrate that the blood was on his eye, it might have been correct; it was one or the other.

Newman identified a valise produced by District Attorney Traver as the valise he had seen Malone have at the station.

Malone Checked Baggage to Newburgh. Frank L. Snyder, railroad express agent at the Marlborough West Shore station, testified that he did not know Malone; on the morning of September 27 a man—witness did not know whether he had one arm or two arms—came to the station to see about checking a piece of baggage south on train 14. Snyder described the checking system in operation at Marlborough; the usual checking system used by railroads. The name given by the man and written on the check was "T. J. Malone." The number of the check was 56329. Half of a baggage check, for baggage shipped from Marlborough to Newburgh, was produced by District Attorney Traver and identified by Snyder, who also identified the release required. The baggage was placed on train 14, leaving Marlborough that morning at 7:19.

No cross-examination. Sold Ticket to Malone. Stephen H. Hines, telegraph operator and ticket clerk at Marlborough, testified that he had known a one-armed man known as Thomas Malone, to whom he had sold a ticket to Newburgh in time for train 14 on the morning of September 27. Only one ticket to Newburgh was sold that morning.

Valise Turned Over to Officer. Hugh B. Malby, station baggage agent at Newburgh, testified that on train 14, one piece of baggage had been turned over to him on the morning of September 27. Mr. Malby had produced before the grand jury the half-coupon and the original way bill for the baggage, which had also come on train 14 that morning, and identified them. The check number was 563350. The baggage called for by the check was turned over to Under Sheriff Hornbeck of Kingston that afternoon. The baggage was a small russet bag, or valise, with one end torn, and witness identified it.

No cross-examination. The valise, baggage checks, etc., were marked for identification. Spots on Suit He Wore. Jailer Seth Jocelyn testified that Malone had been in the Ulster county jail from August 24 to September 26, 1917, returning later. His clothing was removed when he was brought back, a gray suit, and turned over to the district attorney's office. There were spots on the pants and coat at the time.

A gray coat vest and trousers were produced by District Attorney Traver and identified by Jailer Jocelyn. Cross-examination: The stains were one one leg of the pants, and on the coat sleeve. The stains were two or three inches square.

Chemist Says Stains Were Blood. Dr. Joseph A. Deguehee testified he was a consulting chemist of 28 years' experience and gave his technical training in Columbia University and with the New York department of health, police department and district attorney's office. For the past 14 years he has been consulting chemist for the Lederle Laboratories, New York city.

There are well known chemical tests, definite and conclusive, he said, for identification of blood and he had had experience in such methods, both in teaching classes at Columbia and in making tests for the police department and district attorney's office. In October last he received a coat and trousers from the district attorney of Ulster county and took them to New York. The cloth of the suit was gray. The suit had been worn and was soiled and wrinkled. The gray suit identified by Jailer Jocelyn as having been removed from Malone was identified by the witness who said he had applied the tests for blood in six of the spots on the suit. He had first given them a microscopic examination and then cut out small portions of the stained parts from the coat and trousers. He also scraped some of the material from the left leg. "Hello, Whitey," thinking Malone had heard, he sent Sullivan to call him over. Witness asked Malone "When he got out of the Kingston jail" and Malone said "yesterday afternoon" and came down this morning. Michael was killed last night. Q.—"Were you able to determine in your opinion whether the blood you found on these pieces was human blood?"

Mr. Loughran objected on the ground that it was a matter of common knowledge that there was no known method of determining human blood.

whether such stains were human blood.

Objection overruled. A.—"They had the same characteristics as human blood; it is impossible to say they were human blood."

Wouldn't Say It Was Human Blood. Cross-examination: Dr. Deguehee described in detail the process he had followed in making his chemical tests. A solution was made and chemicals added; the mixture was heated over a slow flame until it began to boil and was allowed to cool. Dark, brownish red crystals formed—a test to which only blood responds. This is known as the Heiman test.

Mr. Loughran read a statement from a scientific text book that "According to Beichner, exactly the same results are obtained from indigo," and asked Dr. Deguehee if that was true. The doctor said he disagreed with the statement as to results, and disagreed with other experts, basing his opinion on what he had read but not on personal experience. He would not say that these were human blood stains but only that they had the character of blood. He had also soaked some of the stains with a salt solution which brings blood corpuscles back to their original shape and had then examined them under the microscope. He expected to charge about $50 for his services.

Traded Brown Hat For Blue. Albert Schatzel testified he now lives at the Poughkeepsie State Hospital; last September he was employed by the Central-Hudson Steamboat Company. On September 27 he saw Malone between 10:30 and 11 o'clock at the New York Hotel, 102 Broadway, Newburgh. Malone came in and asked witness to have a drink. Witness asked him where his shoe strings were; Malone said he did not have any. Malone asked the fellow who cleaned up the hotel if he had any kind of a cap. Malone was wearing a soft hat. Schatzel was wearing a soft blue hat but he had bought in Poughkeepsie. Later in the day witness saw Malone in Paddy McGowan's saloon; Malone came in, stood alongside of witness and said he liked his (witness's) hat and would swap hats, offering half a dollar besides. Schatzel said he told Malone he would "swap anyway," without the money.

A blue hat was produced by District Attorney Traver and shown to Schatzel, who said: "That's the bird." The brown hat which he got from Schatzel, he wore until he saw Malone's picture in the Newburgh News; the picture showed Malone wearing the blue hat Schatzel had traded and to himself he said, "Hell, he ain't going to have nothing on me," so he went to police headquarters and turned the brown hat over to Policeman Adams.

Schatzel identified the brown hat which was produced by Mr. Traver.

Saw Blue Hat in Picture. Cross-examination: It was not on September 27 that he told the story to the police. He kept the paper containing the pictures.

Q.—"How did you happen to do that?" A.—"Because it had my fat in the paper."

Schatzel said he recognized the hat because it was blue and it showed blue in the paper; the type in the paper was not blue but the hat was blue in the picture. He did not know if it was Van Kleek's store in Poughkeepsie where he had bought the hat; if the hat showed Van Kleek's name inside it must have been there.

Schatzel said Malone had not given 50 cents to boot but had bought 50 cents worth of drinks for the two or three people in the saloon. No money was passed on the "swap"; his hat cost only 50 cents anyway.

"Said Morano Got Killed." James Sullivan testified he lived at Pine Bush, Orange county, and was in Newburgh on September 27, when he had a talk with Malone at Long's Hotel. A Mr. Coyle was bartender and asked witness to go over to Broadway and do some street and call Malone over. Coyle asked him to have a drink; Malone mentioned a complaint he had and took some "blackberry." Malone asked what kind of a jail they had in Newburgh and said he might be in jail in three or four hours.

Juror Oscar Coddington leaned forward and asked: "Who said that he might be in jail?"

"The prisoner said it," answered Sullivan.

"Malone?" asked District Attorney Traver.

"Yes," said Sullivan.

Q.—"What else did he say?" A.—"He said that Morano got killed."

Nothing was said about any horse or anyone being a horse thief.

To Mr. Loughran's question as to whether Sullivan had not stated on the hearing before the justice of the peace that Malone had added, "I just got out of the Kingston jail, I'm a notorious horse thief and they'll probably blame me," Sullivan answered: "Anything is possible."

Re-direct examination: Witness recollected something was said about a horse thief.

Re-cross examination: Malone bought one drink and witness bought one. Don't remember testifying before the justice of the peace that "the (Malone) didn't have enough money on the bar, I was drinking whiskey and said 'I'll pay the difference, but he paid it.'"

Used Morano's Name Again. William Coyle testified he lived at 177 Water street, Newburgh. On September 27 he heard of the death of a man at Marlborough. He had known Malone there. In cleaning up the hotel that morning for his mother, he found two pool racks and was taking them to the pool room when he saw Malone and called "Hello, Whitey." Thinking Malone had heard, he sent Sullivan to call him over. Witness asked Malone "When he got out of the Kingston jail" and Malone said "yesterday afternoon" and came down this morning. Michael was killed last night. Q.—"Were you able to determine in your opinion whether the blood you found on these pieces was human blood?"

Mr. Loughran objected on the ground that it was a matter of common knowledge that there was no known method of determining human blood.

window, he saw Malone walking along. Later Policeman Adams came along in an auto, inquiring about a one-armed man, and Coyle told him the direction taken by Malone. Afterwards he saw Malone with the policeman. Witness was carrying pool racks and not shoes when he first saw Malone that morning.

Denies Stenographer's Record. Cross-examination: Saw blood on Malone's left ear; it looked like a scab forming above the blood. Witness denied having testified before the justice of the peace that he was carrying three pairs of shoes when he saw Malone, which appears in the stenographic record. He remembered telling the justice he could not remember whether Malone's suit was brown or gray, but was sure the hat was light.

Wouldn't Handcuff a Cripple. Policeman Fred Adams of Newburgh, testified that on September 27 he received instructions at noon to look for Thomas Malone, a man with his left hand missing and one finger off his right hand. Policeman Adams described his movements in searching for Malone and in stopping in several saloons. He finally saw Malone sitting in the doorway of a saloon on Ann street. He asked, "Aren't you Thomas Malone?" to which Malone said, "No, I'm Frank Smith." Malone jumped up and "took a couple of pokes" at Adams, but neither was hurt. When Adams took out his handcuffs, Malone asked "not to be cuffed," because "everybody knew him in Newburgh," where he had "kissed his life." Later at police headquarters, Lieutenant Miles asked him his name and he told him it was "Frank Smith." In giving his pedigree, Malone said he was a laborer, married, and 27 years old. When searched, the police found a knife, spectacles, glasses, a $1 bill, 99 cents in change, two watches—one with a flag pennant fob, a small blank note book, tobacco, safety pins, collar buttons and chewing gum, all of which Adams identified. He also identified the clothing and blue hat.

Cross-examination: Malone was not very drunk when arrested but had been drinking. Witness would not handcuff a one-armed man.

Said His Name Was Smith. Policeman Frank Lowe testified that when Malone was brought in, he gave his name as "Smith," and denied it was "Malone." He wore a gray suit and blue cloth hat. Lowe identified the hat with the fob.

Cross examination: Malone did not ask what crime he was charged with; he did not say he had not committed any murder.

Lieutenant Christopher J. Miles of the Newburgh police, testified that Malone gave his name as "Smith" when brought to headquarters on September 27. Miles told him he knew he was Malone because he had his description "from the time he stole a horse."

Mr. Loughran objected to this statement on the ground that
